OFFICIAL BOARD MEET

The fourth meeting of the official board of the Selby circuit was held on Tuesday afternoon, the 13th inst., with the largest number of members present ever seen at the Board. Every department of the church was found to be in a very flourishing condition. The membership has almost doubled and the minister's salary has advanced over two hundred dollars during the term of the present pastor. The Sunday Schools and Leagues on the circuit have grown in attendance and are much better organized than ever before. The property has been greatly improved, especially at Empey Hill, where a beautiful ten thousand dollar church has been built and paid for. The outlook for this fine old circuit was never as bright as now. Our pastor has been invited to remain for a fourth year and is considering the invitation favorably.

At the close of this meeting the following resolution was unanimously carried, about thirty members being present: "That we, the members of the Quarterly Official Board of the Methodist Church, Selby circuit, desire to place on record, and also to convey to our beloved pastor, Rev. J. W. Down, our appreciation of work done and also the esteem in which he is held by the people of his charge which is so essential for the maintenance of spiritual as well as material progress of the Church of God upon earth. We have viewed, with not a little spiritual pride, the labour and untiring zeal on his part, for the cause so dear to him. On every portion of the circuit, and in fact at all four of the appointments, special services have been held with marked success and approval of our Lord and Master, in the gracious outpouring of His spirit to the ingathering of souls into His kingdom, for which we humbly and devoutly give thanks to the giver of all good. When we learn that at the end of three years of labour on this circuit, that the membership has almost doubled, 221 souls having been added to the church, we are truly grateful for the progress that has been made in the spiritual life of the people on the circuit, and not only so but in material things, or shall we say in material things which we hold sacred. We refer to the building and successful financing of the new church at Empey Hill, a vast undertaking for pastor as well as members and people on that portion of the circuit. It certainly called for a strong effort, and a yet stronger faith, to build so beautiful a place for worship, and yet we found in Mr. Down a man equal to the occasion, for have we not seen and do we not know, that he laboured, and laboured hard, physical as well as mental, for the completion of the work he had undertaken to do, and we extend to him our thankfulness and the satisfaction of the people for this work that has been so well accomplished. We trust and earnestly pray, whether on this circuit or elsewhere, wherever his lot is cast, that the blessing of a kind Father will follow him and his Tales from Shakespeare." Proceedings closed with the singing of the National Anthem, for which Anna Fitzpatrick played the pianiment. The Chapter thanked the Principal and the Collegiate Institute for interest and co-operation in the contest, which helped to bring a successful issue, and also thanked the men who so kindly gave their attention to the examination of the paper, and to Mr. Madol splendid presentation and congratulations and thanks. The Chapter are also due to all the who showed their appreciation of interest in them by entering the competition which resulted in a number of fine essays.

I. O. D. E.

An interesting event took place at the Collegiate Institute on Friday afternoon, when the United Empire Loyalist Chapter met to present prizes to those pupils who had written the best essays on "The Navy and the Empire" and "The Navy and the Colonies."

After a few happy remarks from the principal, Mr. Flach, in which he welcomed the members of the Chapter, and thanked them for their interest in the school, the Regent, Mrs. Harshaw, who was cordially received by the pupils, gave the following short address :

"At the outset of the proceedings this afternoon, I beg, as the Regent of the United Empire Loyalist Chapter of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, which as you know, with the approval of the Principal of this Institute, projected the present competition of essays on an Imperial topic for which prizes were offered for the best papers, to say that ; it gives us great pleasure to be here on so auspicious an occasion, and an added pleasure in knowing that our competition has been so well responded to, and so much interest manifested by the pupils. Through the kind co-operation of your Principal and teachers a splendid range of subjects was submitted to the Chapter and the selection made for this occasion has, at any rate, the merit of being much in the mind of the public, and of consuming a very widespread interest. We beg to congratulate most heartily the Principal and the winners of the prizes as well as Miss Grace Ward, who received "Honourable Mention."

The examiners, we understand, were confronted with "an embarrassment of riches," as all the essays were so good, and some so exceptionally so, that their decision was arrived at with some difficulty. We are not returning the papers to-day, as we wish to ask permission of the prize-winners and of Miss Grace Ward, to allow us to publish their essays in the local press. The others we should like to have the privilege of reading, and, if agreeable, will return them then. Mr. Madole has kindly consented to give the Presentation Address and I am sure you will listen to him with pleasure."

Mr. Madole then made a fine patriotic speech on Imperial unity, he spoke of the Confederation of Canada, recalling some of the names of great statesmen of that time, who helped to bring the Provinces together, and touched on the history of South Africa, where our soldiers did such good work for the Motherland, and of Australia and other Colonies. The Regent presented the prize, a volume of "The Collected Verse of Rudyard Kipling" chosen for the successful competitor in the Upper School, to Mr. Willie McGreer ; Mrs. Madden, 1st Vice-Regent, made the presentation to Miss Adeline Barker of the Middle School, of a copy of "Lamba

In the Millinery Department

The new hats for spring are so different from those of previous seasons that everyone is eager to see them. The display is a brilliant one, for though most of the hats are small, trimmings of vivid color are greatly in evidence. Another point to be noticed is that many of the smartest hats are very lightly trimmed. A tall mount cleverly confected of feathers, flowers, or ribbons, may be all, but it must be placed "just so," and none but the cleverest and most inspired of milliners can hope to produce the chic and becoming results apparent in these new models.

OLD FAMILY PEWS.

Toronto Cathedral Has Names a Century Old on Register.

A hundred years is a long space of time in the life of a modern city, such as Toronto is. Nevertheless, there are plenty of families in Toronto which have continuously held pews in St. James' Cathedral for more than a century. The magnificent pile, which we know to-day, is not, of course, the original building, nor was the latter called a cathedral. The first Anglican church, built between the years 1803 and 1807, was constructed of wood, and was, in fact, little more than a "meeting house." But it stood on almost the same site as the present St. James' Cathedral, though, unlike that edifice, which faces north and south, it faced east and west—a location more conformable with Anglican traditions as to the building of churches. This primitive church was opened for public worship in the year 1807, and in March of that year the pews were sold by public auction, subject to the ground rents of four dollars a year for a double, and two dollars a year for a single, pew. The sum received in pew rents for the first year appears to have amounted to about a hundred and forty-five dollars. Among the earliest pew-holders—none of whom, of course, survive—are many names held in high honor and esteem in Toronto. Some of these good old families are extinct. The members of some of them worship at other churches—like the Robinson family, who to-day attend St. George's. But, in spite of all vicissitudes—the first church, after reconstruction, was replaced by a stone building (the first cathedral), which was destroyed by fire, as was also in its turn, its successor (the second cathedral)—there are still to-day plenty of Torontonians worshipping in the present fourth church and third cathedral, called St. James, whose ancestors were among the original pew-holders in the original wooden church, and in whose families the pews have remained ever since.

Boulton, Heward, Macdonell, Ridout, Stanton, Jarvis, Denison, Cawthra are among the names which appear in the century-old registers, and which are still there to-day.

The way in which a person desirous of acquiring a pew, bought one was by paying a lump sum—either a hundred, or two hundred, or two hundred and fifty dollars, according to its size and location—for the pew as a property. In addition to such lump sum he had to pay an annual ground rent of either six, or ten, or twelve, dollars (as the case might be), and these ground rents were subject to revision by the vestry, and, in fact, have been revised in recent years. As may be gathered from some of the names that have been mentioned previously—the congregation of early days contained a very large percentage of members who were in sympathy with "Family Compact" ideas. Moreover, there was a decidedly English atmosphere about it, and not a little longing, on the part of many of its members, for a privileged position for the Anglican Church in Canada such as it possesses to this day in England. The system of giving a legal title to a pew was brought over from England. And, even in comparatively recent days, a parish school, of the kind so familiar in the Old Country, was conducted, in connection with the church, on the spot where the present Parish House now stands.

Marriage by Proxy Is Toronto Strange Lot.

TORONTO, May 13.—Benjamin Hessen went to bed in Toronto last night a single man. He is now morning married; and the ceremony took place during the night at Amsterdam, Holland.

The remarkable achievement brought about through a marriage by proxy, which took place in Amsterdam, Holland, at 11 a.m. time, but which in Toronto took place this morning.

It probably marks the first time that a man residing in Toronto has been married to a girl the miles across the sea, with the bridegroom being present at the marriage ceremony.

Van Hessen, who is 25 years of age and resides at 307 High Park Avenue, Toronto, and is a salesman for the Harris Abattoir Co. He is now on his way to Holland to see how the marriage by proxy was effected.

The parents of his future bride, Diana Sarlouis, 23 years of age, had a notary public in Toronto prepare the required legal documents, which were forwarded to Toronto for the arrival of the documents.

The documents were filled out by Van Hessen, in the presence of Albert Nordheim, a notary public for Holland, and a Toronto notary public. This was done on January 1, and five days later sent back to Holland for approval.

On its arrival in Holland the documents were given the signature of Wilhelmmina, and thus permission for the performance of the marriage by proxy.

At 11 a.m. to-day Benjamin Hessen of Toronto and Diana Sarlouis of Amsterdam were made wife and husband by proxy, by a notary public in Holland. In the case of a marriage by proxy being performed in Holland it is necessary for the master of the community to be present at the ceremony.

FRIDAY.

A number of Government bills were advanced a stage by the Senate yesterday.

Dr. Louis A. Duhring, famed as a writer and an authority on skin diseases, is dead at Philadelphia, aged 67 years.

Judge Carpenter at Medicine Hat, Alta., yesterday dismissed the charge against W. P. Dunden of interfering with ballot boxes.

The Norwegian bark Brunel was wrecked with a cargo of nitrate on the Pasteur Peninsula, near Valparaiso. The crew were saved.

The overturning of a kettle of hot fat caused a fire which destroyed ten buildings and suffocated 120 horses at Roxbury, Mass., yesterday.

Arthur Talbot was sentenced at Toronto yesterday to 10 days in jail for drinking out of milk cans in transit on the Metropolitan Railway.

Dr. A. Forbes Mackay, who was one of the medical men attached to the expedition to the South Polar regions, will go north with Stefansson.

The British Government announces that no more opium will be sent from India to China this year. It says it is probable that the traffic will never be renewed.

Interest in the proposed local option campaign in Brockville has been revived by the work of a committee which is planning to demand a bylaw next January.

Truancy among children in Frontenac county is so great that the Children's Aid Society has petitioned township councils to appoint truant officers for each school section.

Wm. J. Colville of Toronto, a cashier in the Office Specialty Co., committed suicide by shooting himself. He was 33 years of age and had been in poor health for some time.

SATURDAY.

F. A. Ashbaugh, postmaster at Aylmer since 1897, died suddenly at his home Friday evening.

The King and Queen at Aldershot yesterday witnessed aeronautic manoeuvres under conditions of actual warfare.

The death occurred in Brockville of Rev. Dr. J. H. Larmour, a prominent member of the Montreal Methodist Conference.

Sir John A. Boyd, chancellor of Ontario, has been asked to lay the corner-stone of the new First Baptist Church in Kingston.

The Cornwall Township Council passed a resolution urging that the Senate act favorably towards the Government highways bill.

After a service of sixteen years as City Solicitor for Windsor, Mr. A. St. George yesterday tendered his resignation to the city clerk.

Winnipeg's segregated area is now a thing of the past. On Thursday night the inmates of the red light district left their erstwhile homes and took the train out of town.

Sergt. Wm. Reid of the Windsor police saved three children of Henry Laforet from death when he stopped a runaway team attached to a wagon in which the children were riding.

A strong movement is on foot for municipal ownership of the Brantford Street Railway, and if the city can cancel the franchise a bylaw to that effect will be submitted this year to the ratepayers.

MONDAY.

The activity of Mount Vesuvius, which has been apparent for several days, reached a climax yesterday, and the civic authorities have ordered an investigation into the matter for the protection of human life.

TO RESTRICT GAMBLING.

French Deputies Making a Vigorous Crusade Against Vice.

PARIS, May 13.—Gambling in France may be subjected to more sweeping restrictions than those recently proposed by Jacques Pion, in the Chamber of Deputies.

The amendment to the gambling bill introduced in the chamber on Friday last, will be taken up for further consideration Wednesday. It seeks to revoke all gambling licenses granted under the law of 1907. If this amendment is favored by the chamber, Deputy Charles Dumas announces that he will submit a more drastic amendment, forbidding betting at race courses and roulette in private clubs. It will also provide that the Government is to take measures to prevent French citizens from entering the Monaco Casinos.

MAGISTRATE NAMED.

Frederick T. Watt Is Guelph's Newly Chosen Cadi.

GUELPH, May 13.—Fred. T. Watt will be Guelph's new police magistrate, in succession to T. W. Saunders, resigned. He received official notification of his appointment yesterday. The new magistrate will not likely enter upon his duties until June 1. The appointee is a son of James Watt, a prominent barrister of Guelph. He graduated from the University of Toronto in 1905 and in May, 1908, he was called to the Bar at Osgoode Hall. From that time he has been in partnership with his father, practicing law as a member of the firm of Watt & Watt. The appointment is a generally popular one.

To Stand Personation Trial.

OTTAWA, May 13.—In the police court here yesterday Pierre Faucher was committed for trial on a charge of personation at the municipal elections in January. A similar charge against Omer Chartrand was withdrawn.

The Thrift of Glasgow.

Glasgow sets a splendid example of thrift and enterprise to the other cities and towns of Great Britain. It does not even scorn to collect and sell its waste paper and to traffic in scrap iron, thus adding many hundreds a year to its exchequer. Its cleansing department does business with half the counties of Scotland. It owns nearly 1,000 railroad cars and does a wide range of business from bog reclaiming to market gardening and butcher's work.—London Tit-Bits.

Newton's Fearful Crime.

At the end of a meal at Haydon's house Keats proposed a toast in these terms: "Dishonor to the memory of Newton."

The guests stared at him in questioning surprise, and Wordsworth asked for an explanation.

"It is," answered Keats, "because he destroyed the poetry of the rainbow by reducing it to a prism." And the artists all drank, with one consent, confusion to the savant.

Suffragette Firebugs Are Watched in Irish Capital

DUBLIN, May 13.—The rebreak of militantism is only taste of a campaign which, a to information received by the suffragettes have planned a riot in Dublin for the purpose of showing their resentment of the Nationalist member of the House of Commons, whom they responsible for the defeat of the franchise bill.

Several expert militant firemen here from England for the purpose of organizing the incendiaries of the campaign. The militants are being closely watched by detectives, and elaborate preparations were taken last night to guard theatres, music halls and shows.

Railway Given Warning

LONDON, May 13.—The first Nottingham Boat Club, the police believe, was undoubtedly the suffragettes. Three oil cans woman's bonnet were found.

Officials of the Midland railway yesterday received an anonymous letter, saying: "It is my duty to you that a desperate act will be tempted in a few days to main line express."

While the railway authorities the letter perhaps is a hoax, taking precautions.

BUDGET IS BROUGHT IN Canada Has a Surplus This Year of Fifty-Five Millions.

In Addition to Announcement of Re- markable Prosperity, Finance Min- ister Presents a List of Tariff Reductions, Including Reductions on Sugar, Cement and Tropical Fruits—Lead Bounty Line Raised.

OTTAWA, May 13.—Finance Min- ister White yesterday afternoon delivered the budget speech, but the debate thereon will not occur for some days. Hon. Mr. White has been hurriedly called away by the illness of his mother.

Mr. White, in opening, recalled the revenues and expenditures for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1913. They had amounted to $136,000,000. The expenditure during that year upon ordinary expenditures of government and minor public works had amounted to $98,000,000. Capital expenditures had amounted to $38,000,000. The net reduction of the public debt in that year had been about $100,000. For the year ended March 31, 1913, the estimated revenues were $188,200,000, an increase of $32,000,000. The current expenditure for the year would be approximately $113,250,000, leaving a surplus of revenue over ordinary expenditure of $55,000,000. The capital expenditure would amount to $33,000,000, and as a result of the operations for the year there would be a reduction of the national debt of $23,300,000.

After referring to some refunding operations, the Minister said there would be only two issues of stock of comparatively small amounts to fall due before 1930. In the meantime, the Government was purchasing the 3-1-2 per cent. G.T.P. bonds, guaranteed by the Dominion Government. These bonds to the par value of $13,681,000 had already been purchased, and if bonds were issued to the full extent of the authority conferred upon the company the Government would eventually acquire these bonds of the par value of $38,000,000 in all.

The national debt on March 31, 1912, stood at $339,919,000; it was now reduced to $316,619,000.

Turning to trade figures, the Minister said the total trade of Canada for the year ended March 31, 1912, amounted to $874,637,794; for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1913; the total trade exceeded $1,000,000,000. The imports for the year amounted to $691,000,000, and the exports to $393,000,000, making a total of $1,085,000,000. Trade with the United States had doubled within six years. Our imports from the U. S. have risen from $208,000,000 in 1907-08 to $435,000,000 in 1912-13, while our exports had risen during the same period from $96,000,000 to $151,000,000.

Mr. White said Canada would naturally be a heavy importer, owing to the rush of immigration, the vast public works being carried on, and the startling growth of our cities. Estimating the true balance of trade between Canada and the United States, he said, it must be remembered that 140,000 American settlers last year had brought to Canada in money aid effects at least $140,000,000.

Turning to the coming year, which ends March 31, 1914, Mr. White thought that we would hardly show as startling an increase in revenue, but the revenue for the year should be abundant to meet all current ex-

BRYAN IS FOR PEACE

U. S. Secretary of State Urges Higher Ideal Than War.

Plans of Peace Centenary Committee Include the Stopping of Work For Five Minutes at the Time When the Cornerstones of the Centenary Monuments Are Laid—Will Have Committee For Work.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—"We are here to substitute the spirit of peace for the spirit of war. The ideals of peace are greater than the ideals of war. We know of no cause that cannot be settled better by reason than by war."

These were some of the sentiments expressed last night by Secretary Bryan, who said he spoke for the President of the United States and for the administration under which he holds office. He was addressing the gathering at the banquet by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace for the delegates from Great Britain, who are here to prepare plans for the celebration of the 100th anniversary of peace among English-speaking nations and the signing of the Treaty of Ghent.

Mr. Bryan said he wished to present three thoughts on the subject of peace between Great Britain and the United States.

"That proposed monuments along the Canadian border would testify to merits of the living and the worth of the dead of a century ago; that these monuments would give the lie to the thought that man must have war to be strong, and that the two nations would in the days to come set the world a higher ideal than the ideal of war.

Aim to Perpetuate Peace.

NEW YORK, May 13.—The perpetuation of peace in the future as well as the celebration of its preservation in the past is the purpose of the international committees now planning for the commemoration of the first century of peace among English-speaking nations. This central idea was announced yesterday in a report which gives formal expression to the tentative plans adopted at the meeting of the international conference last week in New York.

At the time fixed for laying the corner-stones of peace monuments in the United States, Great Britain, Canada and Australia, the report recommends that all work stop for five minutes, and that where public assemblages are practicable the interval should be ending to the coming year, which ends March 31, 1914, Mr. White thought that we would hardly show as startling an increase in revenue, but the revenue for the year should be abundant to meet all current expenditures and nearly all expenditures upon capital account. These expenditures he estimates at about $180,000,000.

Next came the announcement as to tariff changes. The majority of these charges were of minor importance, made necessary by the recent treaty between Canada and the British West Indies. The most important of these deals with the tariff on sugar, a complicated and technical schedule.

The duties will now be upon sugar: Upon all refined sugar and sugar above No. 16, duties standard and testing not more than 88 degrees by the polariscope — preferential, 72c.; intermediate and general, 93c., and for each additional degree preferential, 1c.; intermediate and general, 11-3c. On raw sugar, the former preference of 31c. per 100 lbs., is reduced to 16-3-4c., the new preferential rate being 40-3-4c. and the general rate 57-1-2c.

The privilege heretofore accorded to refiners importing foreign sugar at the preferential rate to the extent of 20 per cent. of the sugar refined by them is withdrawn. The Minister said that the loss to the revenue would be about $500,000 per year.

The Minister then announced that the duty on cement would be reduced. The present duty per cwt. is: Preferential, 8c.; intermediate, 11c.; general, 12-1-2c. The new rates will be 7c., 10c., and 10c. As applied to imports from the United States, the duty will be reduced from 43-1-2c. per barrel to 35c. a barrel.

Type-casting and type-setting machines are placed on the free list, and so are traction ditchers of not more than $3,000 in value. Glassware sterilizing apparatus for laboratory work in hospitals and mining resuscitation appliances to produce artificial respiration where persons are poisoned by gas go on the free list. Cotton yarn, 40 or finer, is classified as thread, but as the same is sized and spooled and thus treated as raw material by certain manufacturers, there is a reduction of duty from 10, 12-1-2 and 15 per cent. to 7-1-2, 10 and 12 per cent. The time for lead bounties to be paid is extended for another five-year period, but no money is appropriated except what still remains of the original vote of $2,500,000 in 1903.

The remaining reductions include such items as cocoa and chocolate, tropical cereals (rice, tapioca, cassava, etc.), oranges, lemons, cocoanuts, lime juice, essential oils, asphalt, balata, nitrates (for explosives) and marine sponges.

The heavy frosts of Friday and Saturday nights caused damage estimated at thousands of dollars to orchards and gardens in western Ontario.

An Advanced Move.

The Hamilton Board of Control has decided that woman's help is invaluable in relief work. Which is to say it is worth, exactly, the handsome sum of $600 in salary. The same will be drawn by a qualified nurse, Miss Isabel Ramsay, formerly of the Health Department, and now newly appointed assistant of the local relief officer, Mr. McMenemy. Office work is included in the position.

United States, Great Britain, Canada and Australia, the report recommends that all work stop for five minutes, and that where public assemblages are practicable the interval should be occupied by the reading of the inscription on these monuments. Appropriate addresses should be delivered in the schools and the pupils should be given a half-holiday. Other foreign Government should be asked to send representatives to attend the more important of these cornerstone layings.

In addition to the monuments suggested for the boundary between the United States and Canada, the report calls attention to the desirability of erecting similar monuments in the great centres of population. No specific locations are recommended for these. It is suggested that the subject of these international boundary monuments, particularly the plan for a bridge over the Niagara River, be left to a committee of six, evenly representing the United States and Canada, which shall consult experts in art, architecture and engineering.

Commends Peace Spirit.

PARIS, May 13.—The National Peace Congress yesterday afternoon adopted a lengthy program, which it demanded the French Government should support at The Hague in 1915. It embodied in a resolution the following sentiment:

"The congress felicitates President Woodrow Wilson and Secretary Bryan on their project relating to an enquiry by commissions with a view to the solution of international differences."

Boys Sent to Jail

CORNWALL, May 13.—After being postponed from the original date, the hearing of Lindsay Cross and William Pelkey, who were arrested in connection with a $100 confederate bill transaction last week, came up before Magistrate Denis yesterday. On account of their youth and the fact that it was their first appearance before him, the magistrate let them down with a severe reprimand and a sentence of eight days for Cross and 15 for Pelkey. The boys contended that the whole affair was intended as a joke.

Trayner would have received the King's medal on May 20 for conspicuous bravery on Aug. 3, 1911, in assisting in the arrest of Harry Kelly and Frank Jones, who are now serving long terms in Kingston Penitentiary. In the encounter Trayner received a bullet in his body.

U. S. Customs Court Decides on Wood Pulp Tariff.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The customs court yesterday decided that European nations are entitled to the free entry privilege is granted to under the "most favored nations clause" of their commercial treaties with the United States, because the free entry privilege is granted to Canada under the only operative clause of the Canadian reciprocity agreement.

The decision applies to all nations with which the United States has "favored nation" treaties, admitting their wood pulp and paper to this country free of duty provided the foreign nations concerned do not prohibit or restrict the exportation of those products.

The Underwood tariff bill now before the Senate grants free entry to wood pulp and paper, not exceeding 2-1-2 cents per pound in value. The Canadian Reciprocity Act makes the limit of value four cents per pound.

The court rendered two decisions on two distinct issues. One related to importations of wood pulp from Europe by the American Express Co. and F. Burch & Co., who claimed free entry under the treaties, and the other related to a test importation of wood pulp from Canada by the Cliffe Paper Co., claiming the right to pay duty on the ground that wood pulp and paper from Canada were not entitled to free entry until all parts of Canada had removed all export restrictions.

ONTARIO HAS SPOKEN

NON-PARTISANS JOIN LIBERALS
IN SUPPORT OF LAURIER'S NAVAL POLICY.

"Daughter am I in my mother's house,
But mistress in my own."

Sir Wilfred Laurier has made his second appeal to Ontario and the reply has come back to him in emphatic chorus that the Liberals of that Province are enthusiastic in their support of his Canadian naval policy. Last autumn, before the naval issue came up, Sir Wilfred with some of his former colleagues toured Ontario, and the whole Dominion was amazed at the evidence of Liberal enthusiasm, and the proof that the tide was "back" to Laurier.

On Monday, May 5th, Sir Wilfred Laurier again visited Ontario and at "Tory Toronto" expounded the Liberal views of Imperial defence at what was probably the greatest indoor political meeting ever held in Canada. The answer given him was such as to prove that not only has Ontario Liberalism consolidated in support of the Laurier plan of a Canadian navy as part of the Imperial fleet, but that Ontario ing in the North Sea, and that Canada must be represented with her ships in the firing line. The answer had come from Mr. Churchill. "And these three Canadian ships are to be placed where? In the North Sea? Ready for the emergency? In the firing line? Nothing of the kind. At Gibraltar, by the side of the Malay ship. There to be an Imperial ornament, and in a contingency 'to serve for defence. If they are to be Canadian National ships should they not be in our waters? It seems to me that defence like charity should begin at home."

"I remember we had unanimity in 1900. If we have not got it to-day whose fault is it? It is not the fault of His Majesty's Royal Opposition, it is the fault of the abnormal combination of jingo-Imperialists and Nationalists. "This is what appeals to me. My country is not alone the Province where I was born. My country is wherever in any part of the world the British flag flies. You cannot appear to be indifferent because you sleep in security. Whatever concerns British subjects here, concerns British subjects everywhere."

DUTY PERFORMED, NO REGRETS.

"But party success is not the ultimate end. The assertion of principle about the navy business in the way she is. The house authorities undoubtedly made a mistake in giving the Dominion the advice they did, for the present scheme, now under discussion at Ottawa, is only helping to create political dissension. If the Admiralty had adopted a more magnanimous attitude and advised Canada to follow Australia's lead the opposite effect would probably have been produced and the parties would have been brought together. It certainly seems a pity to sacrifice high principles for a temporary end, all for the sake of a few million dollars. Britain can well provide herself with the necessary money to build all the ships she requires."

This letter was read by Premier Fisher at Melbourne on May 1st, and the cable despatch says: "When Mr. Fisher had finished reading the letter the building in which he was speaking was rent with cheers and expressions of regret were heard on all sides that Canada should have taken the wrong 'a k.'"

Australians as well as Canadians have reason to regret the defeat of the Laurier Government in 1911.

SAILORMAN'S SPRING.

All Is Activity Along the Lakes When Navigation Opens.

Escorted by two puffing and panting little tugs, a mighty steel leviathan, one of the stately fresh-water passenger steamers, is swung from its winter moorings, amid much shouting of orders from anxious mates, sharp-whistled signals, handling of lines, and to the landlubber's eye, confusion in general. Underneath the apparent chaos, however, there is a system. Slowly but surely the big boat swings majestically around, with the tugs snorting like terriers at the end of a leash. Up on the bridge the captain, spick and span in his gold and braid, grasps the whistle cord, a cloud of steam issues from the big whistle, a deep, resonant roar echoes over the river, answered by shrill blasts from the assembled shipping, the tugs cast off, and gathering headway every minute the huge monster forges steadily upstream on the maiden voyage of the season.

Navigation has opened on the Inland Waterways; at every port on the lakes vessels are casting off cable and line, Government buoys have been placed in position, life-saving stations are open, and at night light-house and lightship cast over the darkened water guiding beams of yellow light. All winter long in ice-locked harbor, and snow-swept wharf the vast fleets of the inland marine have tugged somnolently at anchor and line, apparently forgotten by the busy world around them. Came a time, not long ago, when the geese started their northward flight; when every day the sun approached nearer and nearer the line, and from cities near and far, from sleepy little villages, and isolated rural districts, dunnage bag in hand, the sailors began to return.

Spring was nearly here, and a hint of growing things in the air; from tip at Mackinac and the Soo, from Duluth and Port Arthur, reports of ice conditions became daily more favorable, and it was time to fit out the transports of the lakes for that reddest of red letter days on the mariner's calendar, the opening of navigation. The engineers arrived first, donned overalls and canvas gloves, and descended into the bowels of the ship where, like old Vulcan himself, they hammered, sweated, and did all manner of strange technical things as they overhauled and repaired the

A few nights ago a visitor to the hall of the Boys' Don Shuter street, Toronto, says in Toronto Globe, and a long file of youngsters of all most of them from homes outside the charity of boards—pass into the lecture take their "turn" at the mature show. Beyond a mere exuberance, which expresses occasional calls of "Hurry fellows!" the scene was as a military review. meeting ever held in Canada. The answer given him was such as to prove that not only has Ontario Liberalism consolidated in support of the Laurier plan of a Canadian navy as part of the Imperial fleet, but that Ontario Liberalism has been greatly strengthened from the ranks of the independent electors whose ballots always count so heavily in determining elections.

There can be but one conclusion from the growing volume of evidence given by the Western Provincial elections and the tremendous demonstrations wherever the Liberal Chief and his lieutenants have appeared to present this platform. Canada is tired of Bordenism. It has had enough of automatic Tory measures; it is weary of mediaeval methods of Government by Cabinet and gag; it is sick of the nefarious alliance of Tories and Nationalists; it is weary of every promise they have made it is disgusted with the record of election devility, political chicanery and crooked land deals under the Rogers influence; it is unwilling to be dragged back to colonialism and tribute. From every side has come evidence that a wave of Canadian feeling is rising in favour of the truly Imperial Canadian policies of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The handwriting is on the wall in the plainest Anglo-Saxon. Borden is doomed.

A HISTORIC GATHERING.

There were fully 8,000 people in the Arena at Toronto to hear Sir Wilfrid, and it was stated by the police that some 5,000 people were turned away for lack of room. There were, undoubtedly, many in the audience who had voted against Laurier at last election, but as he delivered this message to Ontario he was greeted with cheers which seemed to be unanimous. He syllogized his message in one sentence "Yet while England is England, Canada is Canada."

Pride as a Canadian, pride as a British subject; these were the dominant notes of Sir Wilfrid's speech. He indignantly refused to accept the Borden doctrine, preferring the assurance of Winston Churchill that today England fears nothing. "And let the enemy come whenever he pleases. We will find the British navy equal to any emergency which may be placed upon it."

Then Sir Wilfrid laid down the Liberal creed of Canada's duty to itself and the Mother land.

"It is the part of Canada to come forward and take her share of the defence; that the boats shall be built, so far as it may be done, by Canadian labor—(hear, hear)—equipped and maintained by Canadian labor as well, manned by Canadian sailors under the control of the Canadian Government, of the Canadian Parliament and of the Canadian people. (Cheers.)

"Sir, in a few words you have now the policy of the two parties. On the one hand, you have the policy of the men who pose as the apostles of loyalty, stating that England is in a state of decadence, that she is not equal to the task which is before her; and on the other hand you have the policy of those who say, 'No, England is the same as the England of the past. She can fight her battles, for the cubs of the lion will come forward and take their share in the fray.' And I leave it to you men of Toronto, and of the Province of Ontario, to decide between us."

A CONTINGENT IMPERIAL ORNAMENT.

When the naval Bill was brought down Mr. Borden said there was imminent danger of a struggle pend-meeting ever held in Canada. The answer given him was such as to prove that not only has Ontario Liberalism consolidated in support of the Laurier plan of a Canadian navy as part of the Imperial fleet, but that Ontario Liberalism has been greatly strengthened from the ranks of the independent electors whose ballots always count so heavily in determining elections.

DUTY PERFORMED, NO SECRETS.

"But party success is not the ultimate end. The assertion of principle, the performance of duty is of first consideration. In that light I regret nothing. In the past I was not alone. At that time the Nationalists at Ottawa were just as strong against the Borden policy as against the Laurier policy, but times are changed. At that time Mr. Borden shared with me the honour of being assailed by the Nationalists, but he no longer shares that honour. Today he has not the honour of their insults, but he has the insult of their applause."

CLOSURE IN ELECTION.

"There are differences between the majority and the minority. There are only two fair ways out, a compromise and an appeal to the people. Our limit of obstruction was an appeal to the people. The limit of the present Government is an application of brute force—I have to admit that the 'gag' will do its work, but I want to tell you that there will be an appeal to the people much sooner or later."

AUSTRALIA'S GRAND LESSON TO CANADA.

Hon. Mr. Foster reads his Letter a Lecture.

It is evident that Hon. George E. Foster in Australia is much more consistent with his views as expressed in the Canadian Parliament in 1909 than is his leader, Mr. Borden, or the members of the present Government. Speaking at Melbourne, Australia, on "Ourselves and the Empire" on May 2nd, last, Hon. Mr. Foster dealt lightly with the Canadian naval discussion and proceeded. "I congratulate Australia on her defence policy. She is setting a grand lesson to Canada."

Australia's lesson to Canada is that without any political disguise she is setting about the construction of naval fleet units for her own waters, as she agreed to do at the Imperial Conference of 1909, and as was agreed and planned by the Laurier Government. It is evident that Mr. Foster is able to be much more frank at the Antipodes than he is dared to be in Ottawa since the Borden Government discarded previous naval agreements and laid Canada open to the charge of breaking faith with Australia and New Zealand.

ADMIRAL HENDERSON CONDEMNS BORDEN PLAN.

The Dominion's outlook on Imperial naval problems was a few days ago emphasized by Admiral Sir Reginald Henderson, the British naval officer, who in 1910-11 entered the service of the Australian Government and made the report upon which the Australian naval programme has been founded.

Admiral Henderson, who is now on the retired list and therefore able to express himself independently, wrote to Premier Fisher of Australia as follows:

"I am sorry that Canada is going donned overall and canvas gloves, and descended into the bowels of the ship where, like old Vulcan himself, they hammered, sweated, and did all manner of strange technical things as they overhauled and repaired the big engines that had slept for three long months. Day after day the hold of the vessel resounded to the blow of the sledge, and all manner of metallic sounds, intermingled with an occasional hearty oath, for the crew of the after end were aboard, and the whole riverfront rejoiced accordingly. A week or so later the mates and the boys of the forward end came straggling along, tossed suitcase and "burkey" into convenient bunks, and began to make sojourn. Now, sojourn is washing powder and hot water, and it's great stuff to scrub with. Everywhere they made the stuff, in bath-tubs, caldron, in fact anything that would hold it, and they carted it off in pails, grabbed up brooms and scrub brushes, and attacked with grim determination the layers of dirt and soot that had accumulated on deck and cabin during the winter months. A good deal of the whitework happens either with malicious intention or otherwise to have been placed overhead, and to apply a brush or broom to such an elevated position means that the wielder will receive more of the soapy water than the whitework, as a general rule. Sojourn has a most annoying habit of trickling down a broom-handle and worming its way under a shirt, where it trickles blissfully down a pair of pant legs much to the joy of the owner.

Following close on the heels of the scrubbing gang came others with paint and brush, and rapidly, steadily, the metamorphosis took place, the ship fairly radiated an atmosphere of cleanliness and brightness. Brass work was polished, rails sandpapered and revarnished, the interior of cabins cleaned and decorated anew, supplies taken aboard, the hold swept out, until finally the big vessel lay, groomed and ready for another season's work, on the scattered reaches of the Inland Seas.—Charles G. Cridlin in Canadian Courier.

A Tall Story.

Mr. Fluker's splendid Great Dane dog committed suicide on Tuesday evening. His owner had been away for some time and the dog got very lonesome, and frequently during the afternoon howled mournfully. On the evening in question he went to the station and stood with his head over one of the rails, and howled in front of the incoming train. He did this deliberately, knowing that he would be killed, because he had been taken on the cars many times, and knew enough to get off the track. The wheels of the locomotive severed the head from the body. This was a magnificent specimen of his breed, and although a very powerful brute, he did not molest other dogs. He was at home at the Hotel Canada, where every one made a pet of him. Of course, Buck was pedigreed, and a regular petician.—Diskeard Speaker.

Scouts Number 7,389.

That the Canadian Boy Scout movement is making itself felt was shown at the recent meeting of the Ontario Council, when the annual reports were made. The census shows the following strength in Ontario: Districts, 146; commissioners, 17; Scoutmasters, 253; assistant scoutmasters, 235; and scouts, 7,389. The following warrants were issued: Commissioners, 15; hon. scoutmasters, 6; lady scoutmasters, 1; chaplains, 4; scoutmasters, 66; assistant scoutmasters, 59, and five instructors.

occasional calls of "Hurrah! fellows!" the scene was as a military review. The night was to be part of colored views of Canada and how eager the boys were to enhance their geography lesson, say you? Verily, a not such a lesson as they in an ordinary school, nor conditions. The visitor contrasted the eager exp the boys with the spirit of i wait who couldn't bear cause:

"They hits ye if ye d and they hits ye if ye w they hits ye if ye w st pocket, and they hits ye squeaks, and they hits ye i yer feet, and they hits ye i stan' up in time, and they yer late, and they hits ye the page."

Yet never knew of such an organi-

The Boys' Dominion, to be brief, is a federation modeled directly upon the Dominion of Canada, and composed of four clubs, situated in different parts of the city. Each club is virtually a Province; has its own Provincial Legislature; jurisdiction over local affairs; its own Judge, and elects representatives to the "Dominion House." The latter consists of two political parties—the Federals and the Unionists—and this Parliament is responsible for the conduct of the Domi-

There are no fees to be paid, though the Dominion Parliament levies cer-

ONLY A ROMANCE

An Adventure That Cleared
Miss Gussie's Mind.

By LUELLA WAITE.

Miss Gussie Robertson had ridden out from the camp under the shadows of the Spanish peaks, Colorado, to do some sketching. A party of New York and Boston people were doing the camping out act in great shape. Miss Gussie was the daughter of Colonel Robertson, who was one of the party, and she was an artist of no mean ability. There was but one drawback to her complete happiness. Young Harry Caswell of Boston had imagined for a year past that he was very much in love with her. She didn't have any such feeling for him. She doubted if she ever would have, but she had joined the campers to have time to think it over and had arrived to find him very much in evidence.

It was 10 o'clock when Miss Gussie fastened her pony to a wild plum tree at the head of a gulch two miles from camp and made her way down it and alongside a brawling creek until the wall on her right rose up a full hundred feet in massive ruggedness. Then she found a comfortable seat on a rock and began to sketch the grim wall and the half dozen trees whose roots had found a foothold thereon. It was a quiet, solemn place, even with the brawling of the creek in her ears, and the girl worked for an hour, forgetful almost of where she was. Then there came a sudden and startling interruption.

While Miss Gussie was hitching her broncho to the plum tree and descending the gorge a man about thirty years old, neither good nor bad looking, but possessed of a fighting jaw, was routed out of his camp on the mountain trail above her ten miles away. Five men, all mounted, came upon him as he was saddling up and called upon him to surrender. He yelled back in defiance, and, taking cover, he stood them off for half an hour, wounding two and being himself grazed by a bullet. Then, as the survivors began to work around to his rear, the man mounted his broncho and fled down the trail at full speed. The three un-wounded men pursued him, firing whenever the curving trail brought him into sight. The girl in the gorge heard the shooting and shouting, but could not locate the sounds. In her alarm she rose to her feet and was looking up and down, seeking to make out the situation, when a man and horse came over the top of the cliff above her and crashed into a tree fifty feet down. Thence they deflected into the top of a second tree, thirty feet lower, and as she gazed with wide open eyes the two bodies brought up in the creek almost at her feet. She heard the shouts of men and the clatter of horses' hoofs above, but both soon passed out of hearing.

The girl sprang from the rock and went over the bodies in the creek. The Miss Gussie lingered for an hour and then left the things she had brought, taking her departure to reappear next day and the next and the next. In brief, her visits were made daily for the next seven days, and each day she saw that her bad man was making an improvement. On the last day she found him waiting at the plum trees.

He had furbished himself up as best he could and looked more presentable.
His lameness was about gone, and the saddle from his horse was on the ground beside him.

"My dear young lady," he began, "It goes without saying that my gratitude is unbounded. Did I promise not to make you a proposal of marriage?"

"I—I don't remember," prevaricated the girl as a red flush crossed her face.

"I think I did, and I will stick to my promise. It was to be romance

Every voter is on his honor to obey the laws of the Dominion, and if he fail, as mortal may, he is tried by the Provincial Judge, with all the formality of Osgoode Hall. This Provincial Judge may decide to send the case to higher authorities, and then it comes within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of the Dominion. Three Judges occupy the Supreme Bench and their finding is final.

Fuss and Feathers.

"The Joneses go in for fuss and feathers." "Yes. Jones gets the fuss and his wife the feathers."

The Czar's Private Car.

The last word in the matter of luxury seems to have been said in the furnishing of the czar's private car. It is, in the first place, dynamite proof, and owing to its weight it could not run on the major part of the European lines. The car is furnished with a chapel, a library, a bathroom, a drawing room and a bedroom, besides a kitchen and dining room. The czar always travels with one particular chef, a man now well along in years, who served his father and for awhile the grandfather of the present German emperor.—Harper's.

Nothing All Around.

Brevity in a public document is rarer than well developed feathers on the front leg of a frog. But there was one man who, although defeated in his race for congress last fall, told his story in a few words. He sent to the house of representatives, according to law, his statement of money received and spent for campaign expenses. His report read as follows:

Received nothing.
Paid nothing.
Got nothing.

Cooking School Restaurants.

Cookery had never been taught in Austrian schools until last September, when the minister of education added it to the curriculum of all girls' schools under his control, both elementary and advanced. He further stipulated that any girl taking up modern languages or other extra subjects shall be compelled to include cookery in her school course. In order to carry out the innovation as cheaply as possible, restaurants are run in connection with the larger schools in populous centers.

Changes in Coins.

Only once in twenty-five years can the secretary of the treasury, without the sanction of congress, change the design of any coin. President Wilson's secretary of the treasury will have an opportunity to change the dime, quarter and half dollar, because in 1915 the present designs will have been in circulation for a quarter century.

Some of the treasury officials now in office are in favor of changing them on the ground that they are inert.—New York Post.

in the creek almost at her feet. She heard the shouts of men and the clatter of horses' hoofs above, but both soon passed out of hearing.

The girl sprang from the rock and bent over the bodies in the creek. The horse was dead, but the rider lived. In a moment she had dragged him out of the creek, and as he came to he stared at her in stupid surprise. Sitting up after a moment, he dreamily asked:

"Did I come over the cliff there?"

"You did," was the answer, "and your horse lies dead in the creek. Those trees broke your fall."

"Much obliged to the trees. Did the sheriff's party keep on down the trail?"

"So the sheriff was after you?" she queried as she stepped back a pace.

"Yes, but give me a chance to tell my side of the story. I had a claim up on the mountain, and a hound of a man jumped it. I tried to shoot him out. That's the game in these parts, and there's nothing criminal about it. Don't be afraid of me. You belong to some camping out party, I suppose?"

"Yes, and I will ride back and get help for you."

"Don't do it. If you'll help me a bit I can get along here all right. Help me over against the wall. Thanks. Now, then, I'll want a blanket and some food, and I shall depend on you. You have the soul of an artist and therefore plenty of romance. We will stop at romance. It will be an incident for you to think of, and it will save me making long explanations to the sheriff. Shall it be as I say, or will you leave me to make a dinner for the first bear that comes along? Don't take too much trouble, and keep thinking what a romantic incident it is. No love, no matrimony—just romance!"

There was something in the reckless nature of the man that appealed to Miss Gussie. She doubted that he had told her the truth about himself, but he was temporarily helpless, and she sympathized with him. She gave him her noonday lunch and rode away to camp, returning with a blanket and further provisions. She suggested the camp again, but the man made light of his shaking up and declared he was doing very well. Give him three or four days and he would be ready to go his way.

When the girl left the gorge on this occasion it was understood that she was not to return next day, but early next morning she stole a bottle of liniment from the medicine chest, bribed the cook to put up a luncheon for two and rode away for further sketching. She found the stranger stiff and lame, but more talkative than the day before. On this occasion she saw more romance in the affair. He was a fairly good looking man. He was a victim of

"Please don't—that is, what are you doing with my saddle?"

"Removing it to make room for mine. There, we have it. You see, I have got to borrow your horse. That will also be included in the romance."

"But I object. It is not my horse."

"Sorry, my dear girl, but I can't get away without him, and if I should be taken our little romance would be spoiled. For all your kindness I thank you, and should we meet again under different circumstances?"

Miss Gussie grabbed at the horse, but the bad man was too quick for her. He raised his hat and smiled as he rode away, and she sat down on a stone and cried. She was still crying when the sheriff and four men came galloping up and plunged down into the gorge. They were back in five minutes, and the official asked:

"Young woman, have you seen anything of a man around here this morning?"

"He rode off on my horse half an hour ago," replied the girl.

"So he lived through it?"

"But the men had no right to jump his claim when he was ill," said Miss Gussie in a spirited way.

"Jump his claim! Do you know who the feller is?"

"N-not exactly, but he was very nice. He had to take my horse to get away from you."

"Hear her talking. That feller is Bob Hill, the most notorious highway robber in four states. You must have nursed him up and helped him to vamoose, and I don't know but what I shall have to hold you as accessory."

That evening it was bright moonlight, and Miss Gussie was sitting well away from the camp watching the last rays of twilight fade into night. By and by young Mr. Caswell came over and took her hand and said:

"My dear Gussie, the fourth occasion has arrived. I know I am not fit to lick up your tracks in the dust, but—"

"You can consider that we are engaged," said the girl as she thought how mean it was of the stranger not to have made her at least a tiny proposal before he gobbled her horse and rode away—just enough of a proposal to enable her to brag about it among the other incidents of camping out.

The Giant Sequoias.

In a bulletin issued by the government attention is called to the giant sequoias, many of them more than 4,000 years old. Not only are the sequoias the oldest living things, but the tallest. Within two parks there are thirteen groves, containing more than 12,000 trees ten feet in diameter, some stretching into the air for 300 feet. We think of the big pines of the western coast old at 500 years, but at that age the sequoia is in its babyhood. No wonder man looking at these giants feels his insignificance. They had begun to grow when the Homeric epics were young. They were still young when Caesar invaded Britain. They serve to remind us that the seemingly endless glories of Athens and Rome, of Carthage and Tyre, of Spain and old Mexico, are nothing but flying leaves in the march of ages, since one tree has outlived them all.—Atlanta Georgian.

Bred-to-lay Eggs For Hatching.

The Agricultural Office have just completed their distribution of eggs for hatching. Two thousand White Wyandotte eggs of a special Bred-to-lay strain were purchased by the Department at Guelph and sold to the farmers at cost. In this way a number of farmers have secured the foundation for a pure-bred flock of poultry. Six hundred White Wyandotte Eggs were given to children in eleven rural schools in both Lennox and Addington counties. A quantity of eggs from egg laying strains of Rhode Island Reds and Barred Rocks have also been distributed. Farmers who wish may still obtain eggs for hatching. Next fall there will be a large number of cockerels to be disposed of for breeding purposes, and information as to who have birds for sale may be obtained from the Agricultural Office, Napanee.

Home From British East Africa.

Mr. Oren H. Scouten, wife and son Arthur, arrived in town Friday, May 9th, for a well earned rest and change of air. For the past seven years he has been labouring in the mission fields of British East Africa near Lake Victoria Nyanza. While there he married Miss Fraser, an Irish lady that he had formerly met at the Medical Mission School in New York, a very capable woman. The Village of Strathcona is his native place. He is a grandson of the late Garret Miller and nephew of the late Peter Miller, Esq., of Strathcona. Mr. Scouten had the honor on several occasions of receiving Col. Roosevelt at their mission home. They were cordially received by Mr. Roosevelt on their arrival in New York. They brought quite a number of native curios and photos from the mission field and but for lack of space could tell of the needs of the thousands of villages that have never even heard of the name of Jesus and his power to save. Mr. Scouten and family left Napanee at 10 a.m. May 12, for Western points which are numerous. While at Napanee they were the guests of their cousin, Jacob S. Foster, of Piety Hill.

Bringing us close to the days when Toronto was a little bush settlement, fringed with deep woods, Indian pathed, a group of deer's antlers have been dug out of a swamp in the Don valley, just outside the city, where they lay six feet down. The horns are well preserved and are big ones, larger than those one usually sees brought down from northern woods.
It is judged that they are seventy-five or one hundred years old. The horns are well preserved. They have been hermetically encased in the wet muck that prevented deterioration. Toronto naturalists think that the swamp was one time a "yard," where the deer used to congregate during the winter, and that the horns were shed at the end of the cold weather.

PLANE TRAGEDIES.

The Death of the Second of the Nielson's Sons.

Did not Charles come back yesterday? demanded Colonel Nielson, the eighty-two-year old man killed near Orleans-et-Loire, recently. His son, Edward Nielson, was in military aerial maneuvers of the second son's death hidden from the father, and he could only reply, "Charles or a great flight."

And why then has not come to bid me good night? he would not make him remember was long dead. With their eyes his grandchildren in letters and flowers to disprove as happened then?" asked Nielson.

HAD READ THE CONSTITUTION.

And He Found a Grammatical Flaw in Its First Sentence.

An error, so patent as to be termed glaring, has existed in the very first sentence of the constitution of the United States since its adoption, undetected, as far as can be ascertained, by lawyers or rhetoricians. Strange to say, the error was only exposed by a foreigner applying for citizenship.

A young German, who five years ago had taken out his "first papers"—that is, declared his intention to become an American citizen—was recently taking out his "final papers" in a court of the District. One of the essential steps in this procedure is the examination of the applicant by the judge as to his knowledge of the constitution. The form of the question is, by immemorial custom, as follows:

"Have you read the constitution of the United States, and, if so, do you understand it?"

In this instance the young German, to the astonishment of the examining judge, replied:

"Yes, your honor, and I think the men who wrote it did not know how to write correct English. The very first sentence is defective."

"What do you mean?" queried the judge, bewildered by this foreign attack upon the bulwark of our liberties.

"Why," replied the German, "the first sentence says: 'We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union.' Now, according to the best or, indeed, any authority, the word 'perfect' means something that is by its very nature superlative; it cannot be improved upon. How, then, could the people of the United States form a more perfect Union? If it was perfect before they could add nothing to increase its perfection. It might be made more effective or more binding, but certainly not more perfect!"

The young German got his papers without more ado.—Washington Star.

OUR PAPER MONEY.

It Wears Out Quickly and Is Gradually Increasing in Volume.

The average lifetime of the different denominations of United States paper currency differs considerably, that of the one dollar silver certificate, for instance, being a trifle over one year; the five dollar silver certificate, 1.9 years; the ten dollar gold certificates, 1.08 years; twenty dollar gold certificates, 1.9 years, etc.

The number of pieces of United States paper currency in circulation is gradually increasing and numbered 327,329,159 on June 30, 1912. There were 273,426,330 pieces of United States currency redeemed during the same period, which exceeded by 6,218,415 the number of pieces issued the preceding year.

The increasing growth in redemptions is due primarily to the growth in business activities, the publicity given to uncleanness and alleged insanitation of soiled notes and the consequent demand for cleaner money, the growing practice of payment of wages in factories, shops, etc., weekly and bi-weekly, as compared with monthly, and growing popularity of paper money in sections where silver was for-

PENTECOST NOT GREAT JUBILEE

Still Greater Than Pentecostal Blessings Are Coming.

What the Day of Pentecost Signified—It Was But a Foretaste of a Greater One to Come—Why It Came When It Did—Why the Greater Blessing Will Come and When—Are There Signs That It Is Near?

PASTOR RUSSELL

Boston, Mass., May 11.—Pastor Russell gave two addresses here under the auspices of the International Bible Students' Association. We report one of these from the text: "Upon the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out My Spirit. After this I will pour out My Spirit upon all flesh."—Joel 2:28, 29.

The Pastor called attention to the fact that he had transposed the parts of this text, to make their true meaning more apparent. He declared that the Prophet unquestionably taught two outpourings of the Holy Spirit, only one of which had yet come—that upon God's faithful servants and handmaids. The second is to be upon all flesh—all mankind.

Prior to Pentecost, the Pastor said, no one except Jesus had received spirit-begetting—the Holy Spirit of sonship. God had held all humanity at a distance from Himself, declaring that He could not accept them as sons until their sins had been atoned for. This condition of alienation from God had continued for more than four thousand years before Jesus came. Adam was called a son of God, but after him none was so styled until Jesus.

After Jesus had received the Holy Spirit at baptism, He spoke of Himself as the Son of God. Of His disciples we read, "The Holy Spirit was not yet given; because that Jesus was not yet glorified." (John 7:39.) Before leaving them, Jesus admonished them to tarry at Jerusalem until endued with power from on High.

When Pentecost Was Fully Come.

For ten days the disciples tarried, praying in the upper room, and waiting for the promised demonstration of Divine acceptance. This would indicate that Jesus had appeared in the presence of God, and that the Father had accepted Jesus' sacrifice as a satisfaction for their sins, and by the begetting of the Holy Spirit recognized them as sons. The sonship to which Jesus and the Church have been begotten during this Gospel Age is to the Divine nature, as St. Peter explains.—2 Peter 1:4.

The Pentecostal blessing, therefore, was a double attestation. It proved that Jesus is the great Redeemer had accomplished the work which the Father gave Him to do. It also proved that those who had received the Spirit were accepted as sons of God, original sin having been cancelled through the merit of Christ's sacrifice. And although the miraculous

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, May 12.—The speculative storm centre in grain today moved to the oats trade. A decided flurry resulted from serious reports that the oats crop in the best parts of Indiana and Illinois had received an untimely start. Despite some reaction oats closed at 1/4c to 1/2c net advance. Wheat finished 1/4c to 1/2c off to 1/2c up, corn varied from 1-16c down to 1/4c to 1/2c gain, and provisions showed an upturn of a shade to 1/2c.

The Liverpool Grain Exchange and continental markets were closed yesterday.

CATTLE MARKETS

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, May 12.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ended May 10 were 1400 cattle, 400 sheep and lambs, 3000 hogs and 2200 calves. The supply on the market this morning was 800 cattle, 250 sheep and lambs, 1500 hogs and 1200 calves.

Prices for cattle were firmly maintained, but practically unchanged from last week. Extra heavy steers of choice quality are not in much demand, being sold at a loss to the shipper. Medium-weight choice steers are in good demand. The demand from packers and butchers was much better than a week ago.

Old sheep and yearling lambs were in good demand, but trade was quiet and prices firm. Spring lambs met with a fair demand. Hogs were stronger, and prices advanced 10c to 15c per 100 lbs. The offerings were light and demand was good.

Bomb Proof Bullion Train.

Making monthly shipments amount- ing to nearly $12,000,000, the South African gold mines take extreme care that their bullion shall reach the coast in safety. Since most of the ship- ments are sent from Pretoria by rail many attempts have been made to hold up trains. To make successful robbery impossible the nine companies have built a car that is substantially a safe on wheels. It is equipped with lights that show every inch of space under, over, alongside and on each end of the body, and it is bullet and bomb proof. As further protection a guard is locked up in the car with every shipment and cannot be released until the destination is reached.—Ar- gonaut.

Floating Palace of a Prince.

The Prince of Agra has had con- structed a floating palace. It is of two stories, each very high, and the rooms are grand, vaulted chambers, furnished in the most gorgeous oriental manner. All the chairs have gold- en arms, with precious stones set in the back, and the ceilings are tinted to represent the sky, silver stars appear- ing here and there on the dark blue background. The palace is made of wood and floats with ease on the Jumna river. Here the prince and his royal retinue betake themselves on sultry days, and the palace moves on the water to soft, sweet music, while the royal guests sip cooling beverages.

PLANTING SPONGES.

Methods of Making Them Grow In Use on the Florida Coast.

Biscayne bay, Sugar Loaf key, An- clote keys and Key West, on the Flor- ida coast, are the principal places in this country where experiments in sponge culture have been made. The various methods are as follows:

"Seed" sponges are cut into small pieces and, after having been attached by wiring or spindle to circular or tri- angular cement blocks, are dropped or lowered (depending upon the depth) to rest on the ocean bottom, where they remain for a year or two until they reach a size proper for commercial pur- poses. They are then taken by the hook, when new cuttings are attached and the cement blocks let down again.

Another method was to string them on a wire held horizontal by stakes driven in the bottom. In doing this, however, various difficulties arose. The sponges became loose and rotated on the wire, enlarging the hole made through them, and the action of the salt water corroded and destroyed the wires until, after many trials and ex- periments, a lead wire with a copper core was successfully used.—St. Nich- olas.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Father gave Him to do. It also proved that those who had received the Spirit were accepted as sons of God, original sin having been cancelled through the merit of Christ's sacri- fice. And although the miraculous manifestations of God's favor have not been repeated during this Age, yet we know that all of the same class are sharers, participants in the same blessing—the same acceptance of the Father. "The God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which ac- cording to His abundant Mercy hath begotten us again."—1 Peter 1:3.

Our faith has its sure footing in that original Pentecostal manifesta- tion. Because the Church is one Body, although composed of many members, no repetition of Pentecost has been necessary. As soon as we by consecration come into the one Body, we are sharers in all blessings belonging to that Body, the start of which came on the memorable Pente- cost Day. On this basis, the gather- ing of the Church has progressed for nearly nineteen hundred years. Soon, we believe, it will be completed. The last member having proved faithful and having passed beyond the veil, the Body thenceforth will be complete in glory—united to the Head.

The Greater Jubilee.

To the Church, Pentecost represents liberation of sin and death, as well as introduction into the family of God. Thus it signifies the beginning of all the blessings which the people of God have known. These are ex- pressed in various spiritual terms as the fruits of the Spirit, fellowship with God and our Lord Jesus Christ.

The Pastor explained that those wonderful blessings are not complete. The resurrection change from imper- fections in the flesh to perfection on the spirit plane will be the consum- mation of the Church's hopes. Al- though near, this has not yet been attained.

God purposely deferred the second- ary outpouring of His Holy Spirit—that upon the world—"all flesh," un- til the establishment of His Kingdom. That will be a great Jubilee. In Israel's experiences, every fifteen year was a Jubilee. Every Israelite was set free from bondage and from debts of every kind, and had a fresh start. God thus pictured how during Mes- siah's glorious reign as Mediator of the New Covenant, God will, on ac- count of Jesus' sacrifice, cancel the sins of the whole world, and grant a release from all weaknesses, and as- sistance back to the fullness of Divine favor. What a Jubilee that will be.

Curious Loan Clubs.

Loan clubs have sometimes very pe- culiar rules. One that flourished recently in north London had a rule compelling each member to borrow £5 every year or in default pay a fine of 5 shillings. Loans required the security of two fellow members, and the Gil- bertian situation occasionally arose of a member being refused a loan for want of security and fined for not bor- rowing the money.—London Tatler.

Why Hair Turns White.

The color of the hair is due to iron, which is picked up by the cells of the hair follicle in the little factory in the skin where hairs are made. As one gets older the little cells which work at manufacturing hairs grow weary, and they will not take up as much iron as they once did.—St. Nicholas.

THE NAVY AND THE EMPIRE

(Prize Essay, written by William G. R. McGreer.

Who rules the wave? 'Tis Britannia!
She is the mistress of the seas!

In one sentence, in one phrase, is contained the work of centuries. Britannia rules the waves! The very name of Britannia possesses a charm, a power and a majesty, which the human tongue cannot describe, the very name of Britannia stirs up feelings in the human heart too full, too sacred and too deep for the human tongue to express. Britannia rules the waves! When we but consider that fact and all that it means, all that it signifies, we are thrilled by the consciousness of the power and the responsibility and the glory of the Empire to which we belong.

But the Britannia of to-day is quite a different Britannia from that of twenty-five years ago. At that time England was, comparatively speaking, Britannia; at least so far as the defence of the British Empire and the ruling of the waves were concerned. At that time everyone agreed that it was Great Britain's business to run the empire as she wished, and she thought so herself. But let us trace the changes which have come about in the last twenty-five years, and then we may see what we mean by the "British Empire" and we may the better understand the position to be taken in regard to that momentous question, "The Navy and the Empire."

First, there is the development of the Colonial Conference. The conference of 1887, called at the time of the Queen's Jubilee, was an informal gathering of delegates. Britain then brooked no interferences with her policy in regard to the colonies and only trade relations were discussed. At the conference in 1897 the Home secretary invited the Premier's of the Overseas Dominions to be present. He requested that they should periodically contribute toward the Imperial Defence. They, however, rightly refused a stated contribution. In 1907 this Conference assumed definite form. The term colonial was abandoned, and the new name, Imperial Conference, substituted. It was no longer presided over by the Colonial secretary but by the Prime Minister of Great Britain himself, and when summoned it was described as a Conference as between His Majesty's Government and His Majesty's Governments of the self-governing Dominions beyond the seas. There our status was formally recognized as being one of the five sister-nations, owing allegiance to a common King but possessing parliaments of parallel jurisdiction.

Half a century ago responsible British statesmen felt that the colonies, as they were then called, were a burden to the Empire. In its place, for that feeling has long since passed away, has sprung up the idea and feeling of co-partnership between these sister-nations of the Empire and between Great Britain and her five daughter nations. This is evidenced by the very change in the title of the sovereign. Queen Victoria ruled as "Queen of Great Britain and Ireland and Empress of India." Shortly after his accession Edward the Seventh was addressed by the same title. But in 1902, Lord Salisbury, after consideration with all the self-governing Dominions, passed the Royal Titles Bill, and Eggs of Domestic Fowls.

The government has issued a number of bulletins with reference to the eggs of various fowls. It appears therefrom that the white of an egg is nearly seven-eighths water, the balance being albumen. The yolk is slightly less than one-half water.

The following shows how nearly alike the eggs of various domestic fowls are in respect to composition:

Hens' eggs, 50 per cent water, 16 per cent protein, 33 per cent fat.

Ducks' eggs, 46 per cent water, 17 per cent protein, 36 per cent fat.

Goose eggs, 44 per cent water, 19 per cent protein, 36 per cent fat.

Turkeys' eggs, 48 per cent water, 18 per cent protein, 33 per cent fat.

Protein, as is generally known, is the substance that goes to make muscle and blood. Fat, of course, is fuel for running the body machine. Thus, it will be seen, eggs, though half or nearly half water, are extremely nutritious, containing all the elements required for the building up and support of the human body.

and Empress of India. Shortly after his accession Edward the Seventh was addressed by the same title. But in 1902, Lord Salisbury, after consideration with all the self-governing Dominions, passed the Royal Titles Bill, and twenty months ago it was with pride that Canadians, visiting King George V's coronation, heard Randall, Archbishop of Canterbury, address the newly-crowned sovereign as 'King of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the seas, Defender of the faith and Emperor of India.'

Another example of this tendency toward co-partnership and closer relationship is found in the Committee of Imperial Defence, originally a committee of the Cabinet, which absorbed the Colonial Defence Committee, and is now known as the Council of Imperial Defence. It is a consultative and advisory board and, since it is composed of the most prominent of the British Cabinet's members, its decisions are reasonably sure of being accepted by the British Government of the day. In 1911 the Premiers of Great Britain and of the five self-governing dominions overseas were present. Before them were laid confidential statements of Britain's foreign policy by the First Lord of the Admiralty and Secretary for War. These Premiers were then present by invitation. The other day, Mr. Borden in his speech said that in the future a member of the Canadian Cabinet will be welcomed, not as an invited guest, but as possessing a right to go to this Council, and he shall go regularly and shall not have regard to the special nature of the subject to be discussed but shall possess a mind for the general course and direction of Britain's foreign policy.

From these we can deduce what we mean by Britannia or the "British Empire" to-day. The British Empire is a conglomeration of nations under one King and possessing governments of parallel jurisdiction. In other words, The British Empire is made up of the Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, called the Motherland, and five sister-nations which are indeed daughters of Great Britain and which comprise Canada, Australia, India, British Africa and New Zealand.

For some time the whole British Empire has been stirred up by what is termed "The German Menace," which is another way of saying that they fear the conquest of Britain by Germany. Some think that Germany is really trying to build more dreadnoughts than Great Britain in order to attack Britain on the sea. Others think this is a "war scare," originated by the British nobility who have extensive interests in the ship-building industry. The best way to come to a conclusion on this head is to compare the naval force of Great Britain with that of Germany.

Whereas in 1888 the German navy consisted of twenty-nine battle-ships, three large cruisers, twenty-eight small cruisers, one hundred and eighteen torpedo boats and twenty-five thousand men. The full German navy of 1921 will consist of forty-one battle-ships, twenty large and forty small cruisers, one hundred and forty-four torpedo boats and seventy-two submarines while the personnel will amount to one hundred and one thousand five hundred men. The naval expansion was not provoked by England for England began in 1904 to decrease her number of ships built. Germany at once began to increase her output with the result that in 1909, after a review of the situation, the British Admiralty laid immediate plans for ten new war vessels. This German fleet will not be fully realized until 1920, and then it will not be spread about on the face of the globe but will be concentrated on the shores of the Baltic and North Seas, in close state of affairs in her sister homes.

The British Empire may be compared to the human body. It is composed of different limbs, its heart, its soul. Now, if we can power should thrust a heart of the British Empire not all the parts of that Empire a buckler of dreadnoughts heart to protect England antagonist. England must be ready for any war, with any time. England, or rather Britain, has been caught in an unprepared state. There are the cases of African War, the Crimean Indian Mutiny, in all of which but too obvious that Britain ready for the wars, and all are instances of cases similar present situation.

Each Daughter of the Great Britain owes a debt of filial piety to her mother. She can best show in a visible way by presenting Britain some aid in the way of contribution of money or ships by the British Empire for its defence and to be used by the future generations shall we say of General Wellington. "The path of Duty was Glory."

SCHOLAR STATES

England's Distinguished Scholarship to Morley

For nearly three centuries there has been a close association of scholarship and statesmanship in England. From the time of the death of Lord Morley, there have seldom been among the conspicuous leaders of the great powers men who were deeply in learning or letters and so earned distinction as writers.

England's political history, names, like those of Sir William Pitt, Bolingbroke, Pulteney, Burke, Fox, Canning, De la Beche, Beaconsfield and Salisbury to mention those of Swift, Grote, Macaulay and Mill, would be remembered, least the power to make the members, if they had never active part in public affairs.

STILL HIS LUCK HELD GOOD.

Swinging From a Broken Cable, With Death Almost Certain on the Floor of the Rocky Canyon Far Below, He Took a Desperate Chance and Won.

Some persons have more than their fair share of adventure. Of this fortunate—or unfortunate—class is Mr. W. G. Gilbert, the hero of an extraordinary experience told by Mr. R. D. Strong in the Wide World Magazine.

Mr. Gilbert had been exploring an unfrequented cave high up in the side of a deep canyon in Yellowstone park when he suddenly came upon a huge silver tip bear that showed unmistakable signs of displeasure at being disturbed. The man dashed out of the den, with the snarling bear close at his heels.

The face of the canyon was almost a sheer precipice. To try to run down it was certain death, for if he did not make a misstep and go tumbling to the bottom before he had gone a hundred feet the bear would almost instantly overtake him. Despairingly he looked about him.

A short distance away was the platform of an old aerial tramway that had been used to carry ore across the canyon to the other side. One of the big iron buckets in which the ore had been carried still swung on its two little wheels from the rusted wire cable eight or ten feet out from the platform—just out of reach. It offered the only available means of escape, however, and the hunted man took the chance.

With a shrill cry, for the bear was almost upon him, Gilbert sprang forward and, with every muscle set, leaped out from the platform toward the bucket, the edge of which he just managed to grasp with his finger.

He struggled hard to raise himself and climb in, but for a long time the swinging bucket thwarted every effort. Finally he got a leg over the edge, laboriously clambered in and sank exhausted to the bottom.

Balked of his prey, the angry bear began to claw and tear at the slender cable. In some way the animal touched the big wheel over which the cable ran. The wheel began to turn, and, as it turned, the bucket, with its human freight, ran rapidly down the cable, swaying and swinging as if about to turn over.

Suddenly there was a tearing, snapping sound, and several strands of the rust eaten, weather beaten cable parted. The bucket sagged downward sickeningly.

Looking out, Gilbert saw that only half a dozen strands now sustained the weight of the bucket. If they should part he would be dashed down upon the rocky bottom of the canyon, fully 200 feet below.

It was a serious predicament. The cable might part under his weight at any minute, or the bear might strike the twisted wires a hard blow, which should part a would be dashed down upon the rocky bottom of the canyon, fully 200 feet below.

It was a serious predicament. The cable might part under his weight at any minute, or the bear might strike the twisted wires a hard blow, which would almost certainly break them. He could not pull the bucket along, for the guide cable overhead had disappeared years before. Although there was little hope that any one would bear him in that remote and lonely region, he shouted aloud for help.

Fortunately for Gilbert a party of men passing near by heard his call and hurried to his rescue. But when they saw his plight they were at a loss how to save him. At last one of them jumped on his horse, dashed back to the outfit wagon and returned with several long fish lines and all the rope he could find.

In a few minutes he had whittled out a rough bow and arrow. After tying the fish line to the arrow he shot the latter up and over the bucket. Then Gilbert pulled up the rope which had been fastened to the line and tied it to the cable.

It was a desperate chance for life, but it was his only one. Carefully, without a single unnecessary motion, he stood up in the bucket, grasped the rope, clambered over the side and began to lower himself.

Glowing, foot by foot; he came down. The hearts of the men below almost ceased to beat as he covered a quarter of the distance, then a half, then three-quarters, then all! As he reached the ground they gave a hearty cheer that woke the echoes far and wide, but Gilbert did not hear it. He had fallen in a swoon the moment his feet touched the earth.

SPOILED A CANNIBAL FEAST.

The Missionary Escaped Just In Time to Save His Own Life.

The Rev. Mr. Gelser, a missionary of the Independent Dutch church, who boldly established himself among the fierce natives of Horol, in central Papua a year ago and who early last September was carried by his treacherous converts to a mountain peak and inclosed in a wooden cage with a prospect of furnishing a feast for cannibals later, has succeeded in making his escape and has reached civilization again.

After being confined in the cage Mr. Gelser was deprived of all food. One day he asked the solitary guard to give him some water, declaring that the chiefs had not sentenced him to die of both thirst and starvation. The guard, bringing a large earthen jar of water, opened the thonged gateway and was immediately grappled by the minister.

Though weak from eleven days' fasting, Mr. Gelser was, nevertheless, a powerful man and in a few moments succeeded in choking the native to death, after which he made his way by a circuitous route to the mountain town of Letti and from that place went to Samarai, Papua, and joined his family, who had given him up for lost.

Mr. Gelser says that he learned that the tribesmen did not intend that he should die of starvation, but only that he should become much thinner than he was, when he would be killed and eaten.—New York Sun.

The Art of Food.

I suppose none of us recognizes the great part that is played in life by eating and drinking. The appetite is so imperious that we can stomach the least interesting viands and pass off a dinner hour thankfully enough on bread and water—just as there are men who must read something, if it were only "Bradshaw's Guide." But there is romance about the matter after all. Probably the table has more devotees than love, and I am sure that food is much more generally entertaining than scenery. Do you give in, as Walt Whitman would say, that you are any the less immortal for that? The true materialism is to be ashamed of what we are. To detect the flavor of an olive is no less a piece of human perfection than to find beauty in the colors of the sunset.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

 "Steady, Jake!" he cautioned, while Mrs. Renwyck, appalled at the term after the strain of hearing her husband accused of stealing, burst suddenly into tears, requiring the combined ministrations of Miss Schermerly and the three girls. "Jake" declined positively to be steady, so the little lawyer determined to bring matters to a close.

"Look here!" he shouted. "It seems all of you have had your share of talking. I want to do some of it myself." He turned to the company. "As for my brother-in-law, I feel that I must take his side and declare his innocence of theft. As for this young gentleman, he is equally innocent, though I must admit that he has taking ways." Uncle Michael paused to smile in appreciation of his own humor and continued, "As for me, I haven't the least doubt that any of you hot headed people would slap me in jail at once for the simple reason that I have those diamonds in my pocket."

"You!" cried a dozen people in a breath. "You!"

"Yes," he laughed. "Here they are!" He pulled several jewel cases from his pocket, opened them and held them for all to see.

"So you're the robber, are you?" said Richard coolly, glad of a chance to pay back some of Uncle Michael's gibes. "Well, I'd never have believed it if you hadn't confessed it."

"You score one, Dick, but wait," returned Uncle Michael.

"If this is a joke, Michael," began Mr. Renwyck, frowning heavily, "I must say—"

"It's no joke, as you'll find, Jacob, and if you had followed my advice in the beginning you wouldn't have laid yourself wide open to this awkward libel case."

For a moment there was silence. It was difficult to say who was the most dumfounded—Mr. Renwyck, who saw at once what a blunder he had made; Miss Harriet, who knew that the diamonds had been taken by Mr. Fitz-george's pal and who wondered how her Uncle Michael had got them, and at Richard and continued: "This man is an impostor. He switched off the alarm in my library window, let in his partner in crime and was about to cover up his tracks when I chanced to awaken, heard a noise and came downstairs. I caught him in the very act, I tell you, and the law shall take its course. Here, officer, I command you to arrest that man! He's a thief!"

Richard wheeled upon his accuser, his own anger now bubbling to the boiling point, when a deep voice boomed upon them like the roar of a heavy gun:

"Who calls my son a thief?"

With one accord the company turned toward the speaker, and several of them started at the sight of the giant form of old Bill Williams towering in the doorway.

CHAPTER XXIV

"Why, Dad!"

Richard sprang forward and grasped his father's hand in both his own, while the old man eyed his son with a strange, conflicting mixture of reproach and parental love.

"Dicky," he sighed, "I'm glad to see you all right, my boy, but you've given your poor old dad a heap of worry. Now, what's all this mess about?"

The greeting between father and son was brief, because the bombshell revelation of the son's identity brought another powerful actor to the fore. To Harriet it had come as a tingling relief, for in a flash she understood why Richard had concealed his name, and she found herself smiling happily in answer to his father's courteous bow, but to Jacob Renwyck the effect was far more serious, inasmuch as he seemed to be the target at which this particular shell was aimed. In speechless rage he glared at his former colleague, glared also at the son and finally glared more fiercely still at Michael Corrigan, who advanced, with a smile of greeting, to the visitor.

"Hello, Bill! How are you?" he began cordially as he shook the other's mighty fist.

"Hello, Mike!" was the return greeting. "Where's the tarantula that calls my boy a thief?"

He did not await an answer, but turned instinctively toward his enemy, and for an instant the two fearless promoters stood sizing up each other in utter silence; then Jacob Renwyck spoke.

"I do!" he cried as it flashed upon him how Richard might have used his information in the harbor deal. "I do, you villain, and I include you in the charge! You sent your son to spy upon me, to steal my plans by a miserable, underhand fraud! You—"

"Jacob, Jacob!" wailed Mrs. Renwyck. "Be careful what you say, please!"

"S-s-h!" admonished Uncle Michael. "Don't spoil the fun, Julia. Let the old boys go it. It'll do 'em good."

The old boys in question proceeded to go it, but not for the sake of fun, nor did it seem to do them any good whatever. When Mr. Renwyck paused to catch his breath Bill Williams saw his chance and took the floor.

"Why, you old spavined skate," he thundered, doubling up his hairy fist, "don't think that you can cover up your tracks by abusing me or my boy either! You tricked me away from Texas on a blind trail, that's what you did, while your buccaneering dummies jumped my claim in Austin! Fooled several long afternoons in administering cheer to the sick man, which the sick man had reciprocated through the assistance of the rosy cheeked nurse with flowers, confectionery, and so on, for both of which the nurse had an excellent taste. Miss Sempton had belonged for years to a hospital visiting association and flower mission and had never been so glad of it before. "So he's an English lord! How nice! Goodness me! I always knew he was something out of the common. I think I'll have him call as soon as he is able," her thoughts ran.

"Oh," said Sir Rodney, having taken a full minute to digest Richard's astounding bit of information, staring vacantly at the young man the while, "I—I don't understand, of course, but anything is preferable to this."

He waved his distinguished hand in the direction of all the asylumites collectively, bowed and departed on his way. "I can give you some tidings of him, Sir Rodney," began Miss Sempton, following him out on the porch. "He was quite badly hurt in an automobile accident, but is doing well. I've been in to see him a number of times. Will you remember me most kindly to him and say that—Miss Sempton, you know—will be in again before long?"

"I shall be delighted, my dear young lady, and so, I am sure, will Croyland," answered the baronet, bowing himself away with an appreciation of the young lady's charm, couched in the earl's very words: "Ripping girl! Croyland always was a lucky beggar, by Jove!"

It may here be said that the ambassador, leaving Miss Sempton under the wistaria, indulging in dreams of a coronet which might and eventually did grace her brow, found his friend and gave him a hazy explanation of what he had seen at Irvington, though when the earl discovered how Richard had turned the tables on him, using a noble title for his own advantage, the Englishman failed to see that this stroke of genius was the least bit "clever."

"Deuced bad form!" he muttered in unreasonable resentment, quite forgetting his own turpitude in the matter of name appropriation. "I wouldn't have believed that Williams fellow such a selfish beast, you know." However, in the pleasure he took in Miss Sempton's message the noble earl soon dismissed the other episode from his mind.

"Now," said Uncle Michael when the doors of the hall were closed, "we can breathe once more." He unfolded his telegram and smoothed it out with a soft, caressing hand, cleared his throat and began again: "I have here a message from a friend of mine in Austin, Texas, in which one or both of you gentlemen may perhaps be interested. It seems that the state legislature adjourned just after a certain deep water harbor bill was passed."

In truth, both gentlemen were more than interested, and in the tantalizing pause which the little lawyer made that poor old hackneyed pin might have again done service in dropping.

"Ha!" triumphantly shouted Jacob Renwyck, who could wait no longer. "I knew it! Longmatt!"

"Not on your life!" corrected the cattle king. "Matagorda City!"

Uncle Michael laughed. "Which? Which?" both the assured speculators questioned in the same breath. "Neither, gentlemen, and here's my Bill Williams laid his hand on Corrigan's shoulder and spoke but reproachfully:

"I laid his hand on Mr. Renwyck's shoulder and spoke calmly, fully: "My pet scheme, Mike, and gany was in the field long before he came to New York, and there are my papers to prove it. I knew every move of both of you, and while you and Bill were treating the legislature to whisky and cigars I got into the game myself. Our brazen young friend here had nothing to do with it whatever."

Richard heaved a sigh of deep relief, and old Bill Williams laughed.

"Look here, Mike," he said, "you've got all the money you want. Why in the name of common sense are you wading about in deep water harbors?"

"Several reasons," chuckled Uncle Michael. "First, I wanted the fun of the thing; second, I wanted a rap at Jacob, who is inclined to think he knows everything in the world; third, I wanted a joke on my friend, Bill Williams; fourth, I wanted to prove to you two old gray rats that your teeth are getting dulled by age; fifth, I had at heart the real welfare of the great state of Texas; sixth, I would not see a helpless legislature led astray; seventh, the Peace and Good Will Realty company is a bridal present I intend making to the son and daughter of two of my friends."

"What friends?" asked the two frozen financiers together.

"Bill and Jake!" answered Mr. Corrigan, bursting into another laugh.

Four people flushed, two in anger, the other two for secret reasons of their own.

"Now, listen, boys," continued Uncle Michael earnestly. "You two have had a very foolish quarrel, and it's time to shake hands and make it up. So far as your harbor schemes are concerned, you are both out of the running. I own it—every share. I will turn my interest over to Richard, to do with as he chooses, but if I know him—and I'm inclined to think I do—I have a pretty fair idea as to how he will act. What do you say, Dicky, boy?"

Richard came forward and grasped the lawyer's hand.

"Mr. Corrigan," he said, "forgive me for what I said just now. I take it all back. You're the finest counsel on earth!"

"Oho!" chuckled the little man. "Changed your opinion, have you? Well, go on."

"I couldn't begin to thank you for what you have done for me," continued Richard, "and what that is I am now going to confess. I have been longing to do it for a week. But first let's settle this harbor tangle. I suggest that dad and Mr. Renwyck consolidate their interests with me and we'll open up at Olivia. Olivia is the best place for a harbor, anyway."

"Bully!" chuckled Mr. Corrigan, rubbing his plump hands until the skin was almost peeled. "Well, Jake? Well, Bill?"

"Um! Not a bad idea," admitted the cattle king, with a flickering smile. "What do you say, Renwyck?"

"I think," said the old financier slowly—"I think I'd rather wait for the confession this young man has mentioned. From what I know of him already it may lead to complications."

Richard smiled hopefully at Harriet and stepped to the center of the hall. He made a clean breast of it, beginning at his meeting with the real Lord Croyland, the automobile accident and the cool effrontery of the earl in taking the name of Richard Williams for his personal convenience.

beneath his shaggy brows. "I suppose I needn't ask if it has all been decided without consulting me?"

"Well, no," grinned Richard. "I hoped it would have been, but something always popped up to interrupt us. I should like your permission, sir, to continue."

The financier studied the floor in silence, making no reply till Richard presently touched his shoulder and spoke again.

"Mr. Renwyck," he said, with a twinkle in his eye, "don't forget that I have a libel suit against you. I should hate to run off with a lady while her father pined in jail."

"Oh, go 'long with you!" laughed the millionaire. "I was thinking of the Peace and Good Will Realty company. I guess I'm in with you. Come, gentlemen, let's go into the library and look over Michael's papers."

"Dicky," smiled old Bill Williams to his son, "you're a scamp, and you know it! But I'd give a dozen harbors to see you happy." He placed a caressing arm about the young man's shoulder and whispered into his ear: "Go in and win, Dick, my boy. She's worth it all!"

Mr. Corrigan rubbed his hands and turned to his brother-in-law.

"If you had listened to me at first, Jacob, you—"

"Oh, shut up, Michael!" laughed Mr. Renwyck. "I give in. I'm down, but don't stamp on me. Come on, Williams; I have something in the library besides papers, which I keep for friends!"

CHAPTER XXV.

As the library door closed Miss Renwyck and Miss Schermerly rose to take their leave, the mother with a happy smile at Harriet, the spinster with a long, reproachful frown.

"Dear me!" the matron whispered to her friend. "So Harriet isn't going to be a nobleman's wife, after all. How very disappointing!"

"One of nature's noblemen, dear Julia," said Miss Schermerly, with a complete reversal of opinion. "I always thought him most distinguished,

"Yes," murmured Harriet faintly, and think of the money they are to ed to lose you in the telling. I would gladly have faced death a thousand times rather than deceive you, and yet—for you I did it. Did you know—did you dream that I was an American?"

Harriet laughed. "I guessed you were not an Englishman by the dreadful time you had with Lord Croyland's monologue. Really it was most pathetic!"

Richard took the frail silk cord between his thumb and finger, whirling the glass around his head in the manner of a lariat.

"It has served its purpose, and now we'll smash the last emblem of the foreigner."

"No; don't," interrupted Harriet quickly. "Let me keep it as a souvenir of your realistic impersonation."

He dropped it into her hand and asked:

"But did you suspect that I was the?"

"The cowboy?" she finished. "I-I hoped you were."

"God bless you for that!" he cried. "And, now that you know, may I tell you again that I have loved you, worshipped you, since that first sweet moment when I pulled you from your pony and held you in my arms? May I tell you that never for a moment have I ceased to dream of you, wanting you as I wanted nothing else in the whole wide world?"

"You—you didn't think that way at first," she smiled.

"How? What do you mean?"

Harriet hesitated, blushed and then went on:

"Well—you—you put me down on the grass, gave me that awful whisky—then forgot all about me—to go after your—horrid cows!"

It was Richard's turn to laugh.

"But, you see," he explained, "it was duty that called me then, even as another duty calls me now. I'm afraid I must leave you to look after an English calf." He smiled at Harriet's look of blank astonishment and continued, with a laugh: "It is all on account of poor Woolsey Pills. I thought he had helped to steal your diamonds, and I'm afraid I locked the Cardinal up in the bathroom."

"Oh, please hurry and let the poor thing out!" Miss Harriet pleaded when she fully realized the situation. But Richard for once determined to put pleasure even before so plain a duty as releasing an innocent prisoner.

"No," he whispered; "I want the promise of another prisoner first—a prisoner for life—for all time—and one who will never wish to get away. I love you," he pleaded, "with all my strength and with all my soul. Dearest, will you be my prisoner?"

She checked his extended hands and asked, with a mischievous smile:

"Will—you will you lock me up in the bathroom?"

"If you need it," he answered audaciously. "But at other times I'll lock you in my heart. Darling, will you come?"

Again he came toward her, and this time he would not be denied.

"Yes," murmured Harriet faintly.

And Richard the Brazen came into his own.

Corrigan fancied that he was at the crinkled shirt of troubling to the rivals that he had been successful, he found himself mistaken. The tempest died again, and Richard took a turn at the thunder box. "Here," he cried, striding up to Michael and spinning that portolan about without deference or size, "Mr. Corrigan, if you fifty years younger I'd give soundest thrashing you ever your life!"

"Surprising development the company, with the exception of Mr. Corrigan, were too amazed to do stare at the furious young man, the furious young man continuous to his surroundings: to you in confidence, sir, as they, at your own suggestion, I advice. Corrigan at last mastered

Lord Croyland, the automobile accident and the cool effrontery of the earl in taking the name of Richard Williams for his personal convenience. The Texan then told how he had been met by his host at the railroad station and how he had been mistaken for the Englishman. At this point Mr. Renwyck interrupted him.

"Excuse me," he said, "but why did you pose as some one else?"

"Well, you see," confessed Richard, blushing to the roots of his hair, "you informed me at the time that the Williams family was a—well, a generation of vipers, to be exact, and, besides, I knew that dad would rave if he knew I came."

"You scallawag!" laughed the cattle king. "What were you up to anyway?"

"I'm coming to that, dad," answered the young man, shyly casting another glance in Harriet's direction. That young lady had already turned for flight up the stairs when Richard stopped her with:

"No; wait, please, Miss Harriet. This concerns you. As I couldn't come here in my own name, Mr. Renwyck—and—"

"But why did you wish to be received at all?" the host cut in, while the eyes of Uncle Michael sparkled expectantly.

"Mr. Renwyck," said Richard boldly, now flinging caution to the winds, "that day when I dragged your daughter out of a milling bunch of cattle I swore to follow her if I had to crawl to Jericho on my hands and knees!"

"What!" cried the New Yorker, springing to his feet. "Were you the man?"

"Yes, sir," admitted the young Texan, casting a look of tenderness at a certain young lady who was busily trying to keep down her blushes.

"Well, I never!" burst out Mrs. Renwyck. "I—I thought he was a very funny Englishman!"

"Ah!" exclaimed her husband. "Now I see how you happened to stick on Hawk. Go on; go on!"

This Richard proceeded to do, giving a full account of his tribulations, but with such deep appreciation of their humorous side that the people most imposed upon could not find it in their hearts to be angry with him.

"You see," he said in conclusion, "I was bowled over by a statue of Napoleon, frozen out by a foreign draft and was apparently caught red handed as a burglar. As for the diamonds, perhaps Mr. Corrigan can tell us more about them!"

He did not think it necessary to mention the matter of the letters and hoped that Harriet and Imogene might also be spared a confession. In this the young people were lucky, for Uncle Michael's man had caught both the light fingered gentlemen—Roddy-poddykins' expert and scientific assistant proving to be a notorious crook—who were subsequently lodged in a safe retreat which the Hon. Mr. Kinwatt missed by the skin of his teeth, and means were found to keep them silent as to Mr. Fitzgeorge's adventure in the billiard room, although Mr. Renwyck and Michael had to be told of it.

"So that's the way the matter stands, is it?" asked Mr. Renwyck, with a smile. "You two have been making love under my very nose. I said you were a burglar, sir, and now you prove it." He glanced at his daughter from and think of the money they are to have from dear Michael and that—ah—Bible company!"

Richard and Harriet were not yet alone, for Mr. Cornelius Van der Awe still sat in a huge rocking chair, the picture of woe and misery.

"Do you know," he murmured, apropos of nothing in particular, "everybody in the world seems happy—except poor me!"

"Cornelius!" called a shrill voice, and, looking up, all three spied a flushed face and a disheveled head that were poking over the banisters. "Cornelius, you make me tired! Go out on the lawn and wait until I fix my hair. I never saw such a miserable, dejected, silly boy! I declare, I'm almost sorry that I'm not engaged to Mr. Williams instead of you!"

The head disappeared, the melancholy lover departed, with a dazed and gloomy air, and Harriet and Richard were alone at last. For a moment neither spoke; then he took her unresisting hand.

"Harriet," he whispered, and now his voice for the first time trembled—

"Harriet, do you understand why I stooped to this deception? I tried to tell you over and over again, but fear-

Iceland's Eider Ducks.

In Iceland on certain islands, near Reikjavik, the eider duck is raised in a systematic manner. It is really more of a small goose than a duck, being so independent of fish and animal food as to be able to support itself by grazing on seaweed at the bottom of the sea at a considerable depth. It is a splendid diver, being as much at home under the water as on the surface. The great value of the eider duck's down is well known, and, owing to the bird's tendency to pull out such large quantities for lining its nest that it leaves its lower breast almost bare when it is setting, there is no difficulty in getting a good supply of these feathers without destroying the birds. In Iceland it is strictly guarded against intrusion. The inhabitants consider it a crime worse than stealing deer in Scotland for any person to shoot an eider duck.

MABEL'S CHITCHAT

New Nickel Causes Trouble and Amusement In Trolley Car.

AN IMPROMPTU AUCTION.

Beautiful Silvery Gray Hair and How It May Be Kept In Perfect Condition With a Little Home Care and Some Timely Attention.

Dear Elsa—Such a funny thing happened on the street car the other day that I must tell you about. A woman, evidently a laundress, carrying a number of packages, climbed wearily on the trolley car on which I was riding. The woman packed her bundles around her large person while the conductor waited patiently for her car fare. She at last slowly dug a dime out of the corner of a much used hand bag and handed it to the man. In return the conductor slipped into her toll worn hand a shining new buffalo nickel. The buffalo was too much.

"Here, take your tin beer check," she said. "You don't slip none o' them games on me. Gimme a good nickel and be right smart about it." She held out the nickel, glaring at him. Then as he hesitated she threw it at him. It rolled down the aisle with several passengers bumping their heads in a scramble to get it.

"Gee—one of them new fi' cent pieces!" exclaimed a man who had to scramble to get it, but had caught a glimpse of the buffalo. "I'll give you a dime for the nickel, conductor," he shouted eagerly.

"I'll give fifteen for it. Here y' are. Hand it over," commanded an officious youth, almost snatching the coin. The conductor hung on to the coin.

"What's the game?" he drawled perplexedly.

"Twenty cents! I bid twenty cents. The nickel's mine," piped a quiet man of the repressed henpecked type. He was alone.

"I go one better. Twenty-five's the limit," boomed a big man, who had been enjoying the auction sale over the top of his newspaper. And before any one else could say a word he had dropped the quarter into the bewildered hand of the conductor and extracted the coveted nickel from between his finger and thumb.

She of the bundles had not missed any of the bidding. A wise look came into her eyes. Here was a lucky penny for sure. Well, she would profit by it. She reached up and grabbed the quarter out of the conductor's hand.

"I'll now be takin' my change," she calmly announced as she snatched the coin into her bag.

"No, you don't, lady! That's my quarter. Here's your change," he protested, handing her a good old fashioned nickel of the 1896 variety.

"I got my change, thanks!" She hugged the bag close to her breast and looked up at him defiantly.

"Well, I'll be blowed! How's that for nerve?" ejaculated the now awakened conductor.

"You didn't give me no other change in place of that tin penny they're makweeks the gray haired woman should give her silvery tresses a careful shampoo. A most excellent soap jelly can be made by shaving one-half cake of white toilet soap into a kettle containing three cupfuls of hot water. This mixture must be allowed to simmer over a low flame until the soap has dissolved, then set away until it thickens, when a half teaspoonful of the best ammonia should be beaten in.

When you are ready for your shampoo comb and brush your hair until not a tangle remains; then dampen locks and apply the soap jelly, massaging it well into the scalp and smearing it thickly over the ends of the hair. As soon as your head looks like a fluffy snowball begin to rinse. Use at least nine waters; then fill a kettle with warm water to which you have added a very little indigo and dash the liquid over the hair. Use only enough indigo to give the water the faintest tinge, as too much bluing is worse than none. When silver tresses are inclined to turn yellow slightly blued water proves a friend in need.

The bell has just rung, and my inner consciousness tells me that it's the hairdressing woman to give me a scalp massage, so goodbye for this time. Lovingly,

TINY CREAM PUFFS.

Delicious Cakes That the Home Chef May Prepare.

Diminutive cream puffs, like the little cream cakes that are included among the fancy cakes at the confectioner's, are made in this way: Bring a quarter of a cupful of butter to the boiling point with half a cupful of water. Then add half a cupful of sifted flour and cook, stirring until the mixture is a mass that separates from the sides of the saucepan. Take from the fire and when it has cooled a little add an unbeaten egg, beat it two or three minutes and then add an extra yolk. Beat again. Put teaspoonfuls of the mixture on a buttered tin and bake for a quarter of an hour in a hot oven. A gas heated oven is best, as the strongest heat is at the bottom, and this arrangement of heat induces the cream cakes to rise.

When they are cold fill with a custard made from a cupful of milk thickened with a quarter of a cupful of flour and the same amount of cold milk mixed together. Cook for fifteen minutes, add two beaten egg yolks, a third of a cupful of sugar, a little salt and half a teaspoonful of vanilla.

The filling can be inserted through a hole in the side of the cakes, or else they can be cut in two, filled and put together again. Make a stiff frosting with the white of one egg and confectioner's sugar, flavor some of it with almond, some with orange flower water and some with melted chocolate boiled with sugar and put a spoonful of frosting on the top of each cream cake. A little frosting skillfully put on can be used to bind the opening through which the cream was inserted.

SPRING CLEANING.

Now Is the Time to Consider Its Many Problems.

SOME THINGS THAT HELP.

Work Made Easy if Gone About Systematically—Kitchen Closets and Pantry Require First Attention. Sweep Carpets With the Pile.

Begin the work of thoroughly cleaning a room by dusting and rubbing up all the articles of furniture which may easily be removed from the room. Pictures and ornaments should be taken down and dusted and put aside. If the curtains and draperies are not easily removable they should be looped aside or else be covered as well as possible with large squares of muslin, which are kept for this purpose. The heavier pieces of furniture also should be covered.

Where there is no vacuum cleaner the ordinary corn broom will answer very well.

Always sweep with the pile of the carpet, never across or against it.

After the room has been thoroughly swept slip a clean flannel cover over the broom and proceed to brush ceiling and walls. The rule is to work from above downward.

After the walls are brushed the woodwork should be gone over with dusters. If there are any finger marks they should be removed first. This may be done very effectively with a cloth dipped in kerosene and then wiped dry. Never use this near fire.

The curtains may be brushed or shaken, and then the windows should be cleaned. Wipe the shades, using a very clean cloth for this work.

The sheets which cover the furniture remaining in the room should now be removed completely and the furniture dusted and rubbed up where necessary. It should not require polishing—that is, if average care is taken of it—often more than twice during a season. Clean mirrors and the glass doors of bookcases. The chandeliers must not be overlooked. The metal parts may be wiped with a cloth dipped in cottonseed oil and then wiped dry.

The pictures and ornaments may now be replaced, and then turn your attention to the floor.

If this requires a thorough polishing, which is hardly likely, wipe over with a cloth dipped in the crude oil and alcohol mixture, taking precautions, of course, not to run any risk from fire, and then follow this up with a clean, dry cloth, rubbing vigorously. A weighted polisher may be used for this work. This may easily be made at home, using a brick or an old flatiron with a flannel covering. Never use water on a hardwood polished floor. The result will be most disastrous to the finish.

Before cleaning a bedroom remove the bedding and if it is possible put it out to air. After straightening closets and drawers cover the large pieces of furniture as was done in the library. Remove the mattress cover and spread a sheet of muslin over the bed.

The opinion of the other passengers confirmed this judgment, and the conductor went out on the platform to cool off.

Wasn't the whole incident too amusing? And I, who have been perfectly wild to get one of the new coins, was obliged to be "a looker on in Vienna."

Now for the information you asked for concerning the treatment of gray hair. If you want your mother's silvery hair to look always at its best be sure that she keeps it absolutely free from dust. This is easier said than done, but if she will make a friend of rice powder her hair will always be in beautiful condition.

Every evening your mother before going to bed should fill her hair with rice powder and then tie her head up in a strip of heavy cotton cloth.

Waiting.

A junior officer on a warship was dressing to go ashore and sent for his attendant, a newly-recruited negro boy.

"Sam," said the officer, "give my compliments to the executive officer and tell him I desire permission to go ashore"—which is the formality.

"Yes, suh," said the boy, who stood at attention and did not leave.

"Well," said the officer sharply, "why don't you go?"

"Why, suh," replied the boy, "I ain't heerd no compliments yit!"

Her Gentle Hint.

"You know, Miss Jinx, the doctors say one ought to have at least eight hours' sleep. I hope you take at least that?"

"Sometimes."

"Why not always?"

"Well, you see, I have to get up at six in the morning, and it is already half-past ten, so—oh, must you be going?"

finish.

Before cleaning a bedroom remove the bedding and if it is possible put it out to air. After straightening closets and drawers cover the large pieces of furniture as was done in the library. Remove the mattress cover and spread a sheet of muslin over the bed. Take up the small rugs. With a light stick or a rattan carpet beater beat the mattress. The sheet which covers it should be moistened to hold down the dust. Both sides must be beaten. If the mattress can be beaten out of doors it should be done.

In the kitchen the closets and pantry will require first attention. The shelves should be thoroughly washed and allowed to dry before the utensils are replaced. This is a good time to take note of the contents of jars and boxes, making a list of those supplies which are running low.

The walls around sink and range may require washing, as they are more apt to become soiled than the other parts of the room.

The range should be given a thorough polishing once in two weeks. This will be found quite often enough, provided a little care is taken of it day by day.

The Guest Book.

Among the old customs that have been revived is that of having a special book in the home in which is inscribed the name of each guest who spends a night or more under one's roof, and some people even put down those who take a meal there and those who call.

The guest may inscribe his name himself, thereby leaving his autograph, or the host or hostess, if preferred, may write it himself or herself, so that the writing will be uniform throughout the book.

Books designed especially for this purpose may be found in the stationery shops, bound inexpensively in cloth or leather. But if one desires to spend a little more money and make the guest book quite original and a thing of beauty one may have a hand tooled cover, hammered brass or copper hinges and even a key to make it look like the ancient ones that were used in olden times.

For Hanging Pictures.

When a wall is so soft that it will not hold a picture nail mix a little plaster of paris in a teacup, enlarge the hole to a fair size and insert the plaster and, a minute after, the nail and let it dry. The nail will be perfectly secure after it has dried.

Cleaning Windows.

If windows are cleaned with vinegar and water they will be brighter and stay clean longer than if cleaned with water alone. Polish in the usual way with soft linen cloth.

Powders in Bananas.

If you have difficulty in drying chili or powders and a banana down the middle, scrape out some of the pulp and mix the powder in. Place together and the taste is hardly ever noticed.

MAKING FARM

WITH the present tendency of city people to acquire land we will see better marketing, if not better farming. There is a call for business methods on the farm. Greater profits will come when landowners study the needs of the markets which surround them. They should aim to produce those articles for which there is a steady demand and which give a good return for the ground and labor involved.

Any one starting on a little farm can easily tell by the location what products will pay best. If near a good cash market—say a city of 20,000 to 30,000—a general line of garden truck may be raised. A load can be taken to town every day for six or seven months in the year. Private families, restaurants and hotels will gladly pay full retail prices to the farmer for fresh produce nicely handled. This marketing may include eggs, poultry, milk and all kinds of fruit and vegetables.

If three to five miles out from a station the little farm owner can confine his operations to produce that does not require a daily trip to town. Weekly trips will do for two-thirds of the produce that is raised, and instead of running a dairy it will be better to raise hogs, poultry, potatoes and other things that do not have to have quick marketing. There is a steady cash demand for all these articles.

A successful grain broker quit business in the city a few years ago to engage in flower raising. He wished to try life on a farm. Being a practical man, he determined to get a good cash income, so he bought twenty acres and went in for carnations and asters.

To keep up soil fertility drain the land thoroughly, cultivate well, rotate systematically with frequent use of clover, use all the barnyard manure and apply some phosphorus.—Farm Press.

QUINCES A PAYING CROP.

One Man Thinks They're Worth Ten Times as Much as Apples.

Two acres of quinces ought to make more money for the farmer than twenty acres of apples, according to Professor J. C. Whitten, a well known authority on horticulture.

"The quince is more neglected in proportion to its merits than any of our orchard fruits," he said. "Nobody ever saw an overplus of quinces. There is an unlimited demand for them. If the farmer has a place where they will do well the crop, properly handled, will pay better than any of our orchard fruits. The fruit is the finest we have to ship, the most handsome and the best keeper."

THE LITTLE PAY

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

In four months from the time he had secured his land this practical business man was shipping carnations to the city market. One greenhouse covering nearly an acre had been put up, and a large steam heating plant was being installed.

The latter feature was in working order before winter set in. Two dwelling houses were also put up. As soon as his help was well organized and accustomed to the work at hand another large greenhouse was erected.

The production of flowers proceeded all winter, and the end of the first year found the man who was running his farm on business principles enjoying an income of $1,000 per month.

It is probably true that when a larger proportion of trained business men turn their attention to tilling the soil there will be greater financial results and less waste of land.

When men take hold of farming in earnest they will work the soil for all there is in it, just as they conduct stores and factories. The American farmer is industrious, frugal and intelligent, and yet, as a rule, he does not farm on business principles. He has acquired his fertile acres too easily, and the handling of large areas has bred carelessness and overconfidence.

The new way that I am trying to tell about is to make twenty-five to fifty acres produce the same results that heretofore have been gained from 100 to 200 acres. I would cut out the long hours of drudgery and make the business of farming tolerable to young people of ambition and spirit. This is the improvement needed in American rural life.

The day is coming when farmers will breed their seed corn as carefully as the best farmers now mate their animals. This means a breeding plot for every farm.—Country Gentleman.

STRONGLY ADVISES "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

MR. ALEX. MCCARTER

WALKERTON ONT., May 9th, 1911.

"I have been in Walkerton in business for a good many years and many of my townsmen know that my health, for long periods was precarious. My trouble was extreme Nervousness, brought on by Indigestion and Dyspepsia, from which I suffered in the most severe form. It was so bad that I could not sleep before about four in the morning. I noticed one of your published testimonials of how someone had used "Fruit-a-tives" for similar trouble and asked Mr. Hunter, my druggist, his opinion on the matter and he advised their use. I immediately procured several boxes and I am pleased to say that I now enjoy splendid health and could not possibly feel better. I can eat with every degree of satisfaction and sleep without an effort. I strongly advise anyone suffering from like complaints, to commence using "Fruit-a-tives". ALEX. MCCARTER.

WARLIKE ALBANIANS.

Quick to Shoot and Have Blood Feuds and Blood Fraternities.

Albania has been compared to the highlands of Scotland in the sixteenth century, when all the clans were in constant feud one with another. "Many a time," says Foster Frazer, "I have thought of similarities between Albania and Scotland. There are parts of the country reminiscent of the highlands. The passionate love of country is characteristic of both peoples. The alertness of the Highlander to resent insult is equaled only by the quickness of the Albanian to shoot any one who may disagree with him. The quilted petticoat of the Albanian is certainly similar to the Highlander's kilt, and if you hear the wail of Albanian music in the hills you can without much stretch of imagination fancy you are listening to the skirl of the bagpipes."

The blood feud is the best known of Albanian institutions, but there are fraternities as well in which blood also figures. Two young Albanians will take a vow to stand by each other through life, and the relation established is so sacred that the children of the two may not marry. Among the

According to Professor Whitten, quince growing has never had a boom.

"This is because the quince grown under ordinary treatment, as most of our apples and other fruits are grown, does not have a good flavor and is poor in quality.

"The trees must have individual care and expert treatment. It requires the greatest skill to select the right site for the orchard. If properly handled pruning, spraying and picking are easier than in our other orchards.

"When cooked the quince is the best of our core or stone fruits. For preserves, jellies and the like the quince is the richest, most highly flavored and the most delicious fruit we have."

Alfalfa Without Seeds?

It seems that the department of agriculture in its worldwide search for varieties has discovered an alfalfa which produces rhizomes. A rhizome is an underground stem, like that of Bermuda grass and quack grass, by which the plant is able to reproduce itself without seeds. If this is true it is enormously important.

Do You Grow Roses?

The Maryland experiment station finds that painting greenhouse hot water pipes with concentrated lime-sulphur and evaporating the lime-sulphur in open containers controls mildew on greenhouse roses.

Merely a Conversation.

This is not a classic. On the other hand, it is not a joke. It is one of those things about half way between comic and pathetic that you don't know how to classify. Let us therefore call it an overheard conversation, which indeed is all it is, anyhow.
"She's a dandy little girl, all right, in spite o' her faults."
"She is that. Ain't she nice to her parents?"
"Sure—why, she jest dotes on her mother."
"So they tell me. I hear that she even interdoosed her mother to some o' her swell friends."

WALL ATTACHED FEED TROUGH.
[From Orange Judd Farmer.]

will like it, says a correspondent of the Orange Judd Farmer. Cut through the ceiling board between the studding and take out the board. Put two small hinges on it, replace and fix a button to hold it in place. Next cut a slit about two inches wide and nearly to the studding on both sides, about a foot above the floor. Insert a trough running back and slanting to the outside clapboards. Allow the front edge of the trough to come a little above the opening in the wall so the feed will not overrun. With a coal scuttle the trough may be easily filled, and the hens cannot waste or get on top of the trough and foul it.

I have three in my house for grit, shell and bran during the winter. Where one feeds grains and thinks it best to keep a hopper before the fowls all the time this plan will be liked, as it takes up no room whatever. If one's house is not celled the boxes may be put on the outside of the house with troughs running through. The tops of the boxes should slant so the rain will run off. These, of course, will have to be filled from the outside. With this plant the feed drops down as fast as the hens remove it from the troughs.

DAIRY DOINGS.

Beware of the coughing cow. Tuberculosis is found most frequently in the lungs and throat passages.

Carrots in some Massachusetts tests were used to replace a part of the hay ration supplied to cows. They increase the yield of milk more than corn silage.

Do not let the horns grow on the young heifer calves. A little stick caustic potash rubbed on the "buttons" when they are about a week old will remove them without a scar.

The simple remedy for a caked udder after calving is frequent baths with hot water. Then grease the quarters well with a mixture of turpentine one part and melted lard two parts, using it quite warm. Rub and knead the udder a good deal each time. Give the cow internally a teaspoonful of the fluid extract of pokeweed three times per day. Continue the treatment for two weeks.

Among the Mirdites young men who take this vow drink wine with which a few drops of the blood of both have been mingled.

Two such vowed friends, the story goes, once discovered that they were both in love with the same woman, a Turk. Their solution of the difficulty was peaceful—from their own point of view—for they drove their daggers together into her heart.—Chicago News.

JAPAN'S WEDDING SHRINE.

Where Western Marriage Rites Are Followed to Some Extent.

The Iibiya daljingu, or great god shrine, near Hibiva park, Tokyo, is the most famous place in the empire for the celebration of marriages. A dozen or so years ago such a custom, that of performing wedding services at shrines, was unheard of, and it was Dr. Baron Takagi who established the practice, following that of the western marriage rites in most respects. Since this innovation the daljingu wedding has become most popular, and it is seldom nowadays, says the Far East, that any bride or groom from a family of good standing is married in the old fashioned manner with the ceremony of three times three cups of sake.

When the bride and groom and the relatives have assembled at the shrine the head priest advances to the altar of the gods and says a prayer to the ancestors of the country and then makes the couple promise that they will never separate. The priest then serves the gods with sake, after which it is given to the bride and groom, who make a vow before the gods that they will be constant to each other, and to make such a promise before the gods is one that does not admit of any lapse on the part of either party concerned. Then the sake is given to the relatives, and the signal is made to repair to a western hotel for a foreign banquet or perhaps to a restaurant, where a purely Japanese menu will be served.

Browning and Votes For Women.

Robert Browning was at one period of his life an enthusiastic advocate of votes for women. "He approved of everything that had been done for the higher instruction of women," writes his biographer, Mrs. Sutherland Orr, "and would, not very long before his death, have supported their admission to the franchise. But he was so much displeased by the more recent action of some of the lady advocates of women's rights that during the last year of his life, after various modifications of opinion, he frankly pledged himself to the opposite view." At one time, it appears, Browning contemplated writing a play in support of the movement. Had this design been carried into effect Miss Elizabeth Robins would have been anticipated by about twenty years.

W. C. T. U.

A Canadian Press Despatch states that the W. C. T. U. of Canada are confidently expecting that soon a bill will be introduced into parliament to prohibit the manufacture, sale and importation of cigarettes into Canada. The despatch states that the Hon. R. L. Borden, himself has promised to introduce the bill. If this be so prohibitory legislation of this evil is assured since the bill would then be introduced as a government measure, and as usual would have to have government support. On the other hand, according to tricky parliamentary tactics, the bill may be introduced as a private member's bill and go down to defeat of course, as was the case with the recent Woman's Suffrage Bill in England, which was introduced in that manner for the purpose of defeat. It would appear too good to be true that a bill for which the W. C. T. U. has been working so hard for years should, without further parley, suddenly be run through, more particularly when a similar bill, introduced by Mr. Robert Bickerdike, M. P., five years ago was summarily thrown out, and large capital interests are at the back of the trade and will see that there is nothing so reforming accomplished without a fight between money and purity. The report has been denied by Cabinet Ministers, but what a splendid thing for Canada could a bill of this kind, having for its object a brighter, stranger, cleaner Canada, be passed.

King's Birthday at Belleville.

Never in the history of the Bay of Quinte District has such care been exercised and such a tremendous expense gone to in arranging a celebration as the present demonstration to be held on the King's Birthday in Belleville. To prevent any possibility of disappointment in the great event of the day, the Committee, with immense energy and enterprise have secured the services of Pauley, "The Birdman," and at great expense have had the aeroplane in which he is to make his thrilling flights brought to Belleville so far in advance of the celebration. This wonderful machine is now actually in Belleville and the Birdman will begin his preliminary flights any day now to prepare him for his wonderful exhibition June 3rd. This is one of the many great events to be held on that day, and one of which is of sufficient interest for one to travel miles to see. Belleville is to crowd in the most sensational and entertaining programme of events that has ever been attempted in one celebration. The Motor Cycle race Automobile race and aeroplane flights are sufficient to make the blood stir in any mortal. But the spectacle of one thousand school children in their drills and school work under the masterful direction of Professor Rockwell, the Grand Military Tournament, Horse Racing, Baseball, and one hundred other lively events will truly make June 3rd a red letter day in the history of Belleville. The time, June 3rd. The place, Belleville.

SPRING

We are pleased to announce that we have been appointed sole representatives in Napanee for the House of Hobberlin, tailors to the Canadian gentleman. This firm we have been informed employs a most skillful and artistic designer to whom they pay the modest sum of $8000 per annum. Their sample outfit is the most elaborate we have ever seen from any house doing a special order business. We KNOW their Cloths are of a high order and the range embraces every line that a good dresser could desire. They absolutely guarantee every garment they turn out to be perfect in fit and workmanship. Money back if not satisfactory, and no grumbling. What more could any man ask. We would be delighted to show their range of samples to any man contemplating the purchase of a new suit. If you order and the garments are not entirely satisfactory to YOU it will cost you nothing whatever but the time you spent in making your selection. We know of no fairer way of doing business.

Samples are now ready for inspection at
